Vacated by Alice Harms

Maczka asks to fill village post

Walter J. Maczka, an unsuccessful candidate for the Arlington Heights Village Board in April 1975, has asked to be considered for the vacancy created by Alice Harms' resignation.

He is the first to be nominated, Village Pres. James T. Ryan said.

Maczka, 26, of 630 N. Haddow, was also the first declared candidate in the April election. Running independently and spending only $110 on his campaign, he finished sixth among nine candidates with 4,627 votes. Four were elected.

"I am running for the same reasons that made Mrs. Harms quit," Maczka said. "I don't feel (Village Pres.) Jim Ryan has done anything since he's been in office and the board hasn't done anything out of the ordinary, either."

"THE ONLY priorities that have been set up are the priorities of those backing Mr. Ryan's group," he said.

Maczka called Mrs. Harms "the best trustee we've ever had."

"I don't think I would have resigned. I would have brought it out to the public if I felt I was really reaching the point that I was powerless," he said.

Mrs. Harms resigned from the village board Jan. 19 after serving five years. One year is left on her term.

Rotary Ann Club

meeting set Feb. 3

The Arlington Heights Rotary Ann Club will meet at 10 a.m. Feb. 3 at the home of Gladys Dotts, 1015 S. Highland Ave.

A luncheon will be served. The project will be manufacturing of Rotary banners.

Filling board vacancy on agenda tonight

The Arlington Heights Village Board will decide tonight how to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Trustee Alice Harms.

Trustee David Griffin announced last week that he will call for a special election to be conducted Feb. 28 in conjunction with the Arlington Heights Memorial Library referendum. Village Pres. James T. Ryan has questioned Griffin's proposal saying three weeks would not be enough time to develop campaign issues.

The board must also decide if it should conduct budget hearings when the vacancy exists, Ryan said. The hearings are expected to begin next week.

MRS. HARMS' surprise resignation

In her resignation statement she said she felt "powerless" to change what she termed an erosion of non-partisan government in Arlington Heights.

MACZKA SAID he would have voted against the village applying for $134,000 in community development funds because the funds were not needed. "I can't see us getting obligated to the federal government," he said.

Maczka also opposes the construction of the Lincoln Green housing project near St. Viator High School which will be reviewed this spring by the U. S. Supreme Court.

"I don't feel the federal government has the right to come in and tell a came at the end of the village board meeting Jan. 19.

Griffin said he favors having a special election because it is the "most open way" to select a trustee.

"It gets down to the bottom line of letting the people decide. It would also give the opportunity to air the alleged grievances in Alice's (resignation) letter," Griffin said.

Ryan said if the board decides against a special election, open meetings should be held to select a replacement. Under that system, Ryan would make a recommendation with board approval required.

In the past, the board has filled vacancies after executive session without the names of unsuccessful candidates being made public.

community what to do. They should have to prove it if we've discriminated," he said.

Maczka is employed by Sargent and Lundy Engineers in Chicago.

TODAY'S MEETING, which begins at 8 p.m. at the municipal building, 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd., was originally scheduled to discuss Ryan's proposal to change village board representation from an at-large to district system.

Mrs. Harms also attacked that proposal in her letter of resignation.

Ryan has proposed a referendum be held on the question.

"The time has come. A decision needs to be made in the near future if we should put it to a referendum. I can't see continually delaying it," Ryan said. "The people ought to have the right to decide their form of government. That is democracy at its best."

The village board is meeting at 8 p.m. today at the municipal building, 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd. to decide if the vacancy will be filled by a board appointment or special election.

Snowfall prompts 23-inch memory

Sunday's snow conjured visions of the big white pileup nine years ago almost to the day, but tapered off far short of the record 23 inches.

It was Thursday, Jan. 26, 1967, that the snow got heavier and heavier until normal activity became snowed under. A U.S. Weather Service spokesman said Sunday's snow fell in sporadic bursts, and was expected to end today with more than six inches dumped on the Northwest suburbs.

Snowdrifts were expected to be a problem for the morning rush hour with winds gusting up to 30 miles per hour and remaining brisk today, the spokesman said.

The overnight low was forecast to range from 20-25 degrees.

State police said the snowfall made major highways snow-packed and hazardous, but said no serious accidents were reported. Local police departments were busy with a rash of mostly fender-bender type mishaps.

A spokesman for Northwest Community Hospital said a person was under treatment for a snowmobile accident, noting it was not serious.

Delays of up to an hour and a half were reported by officials at O'Hare Airport.

State police reported heavy snowfall in southern Wisconsin near Madison, where highways were shut down because of numerous accidents. Indiana was experiencing snow showers, icing local roads.

Teens get help in battle of bulge

by DIANE MERMIGAS

Some people think it's just wonderful to be that pizza-loving, pretzel-stuffing age of 17.

Flab-prone adults tend to envy the average hyperactive teen who can effortlessly burn up the "garbage foods" that compose the normal teen-age diet.

But there is an increasing number of teen-agers who have an uncontrollable urge to eat and a heavy figure to prove it.

A group of concerned parents and adults who also have coped with the problem of excess weight are offering teens in the Northwest suburbs a new way to battle the bulge. They call it "Oateen."

The group is an outgrowth of the national Overeaters Anonymous organization which views overeating as a progressive illness which can be arrested through the companionship and support of others.

WILL POWER IS the members' goal. Weekly meetings to discuss common dieting problems and to form friendships for support are the group's main calorie-cutting tools.

"You have to believe in yourself. You have to believe that you can lose the weight. You must realize that you have a problem and then analyze why it is you overeat," said Dottie, a 2½-year member of Overeaters Anonymous who, like most members, conceals her identity.

The organization does not require exercise, weigh-ins or fees. It gives members suggested diets and someone to telephone for help when they get the urge to eat something fattening.

Dottie, who has successfully lost weight through the Overeaters' program, believes teen-agers could use the same kind of help.

"THERE IS REALLY very little help available to teens that is geared toward helping them lose weight without being embarrassed about it. Most diet clubs are too expensive and teens seem to shy away from the majority of adults enrolled in them," Dottie said.

Eleanor feels the same way. She remembers being overweight as a teen-ager. She remembers the teasing, the self-consciousness and the rejection. Now, she sees her own daughter going through it.

"It's no fun being overweight because you tend to develop as the clown of the group or the door mat that everyone wipes their feet on."

"When you are young you want to wear the fashions; you want to be asked out on dates and you are open to the pressures of the peer group you're in," Eleanor said.

Eleanor weighed 250 pounds 15 months ago. She weighs half of that now. She eats three balanced meals a day and continues to think ahead about the weight she will lose.

OVEREATERS ANONYMOUS has given her the support she needed, she said, and now she wants her daughter to have that same incentive from girls her own age.

High school cafeteria lines feature many starchy, inexpensive dishes, and it gets embarrassing for a teen to brown-bag cottage cheese and celery sticks when her friends are gorging themselves with goodies, Eleanor said.

And how can a teen refuse pizza and beer on a Saturday night date?

Debbie, an area high school sophomore, says "it's a battle" to refuse all that temptation. She weighed 230 pounds as an eighth grader and has dropped 96 of those pounds during the past 2½ years through the Overeaters Anonymous program.

She is helping to form the new "Oateen" group just for boys and girls her age.

"IT'S REALLY HARD to lose weight when you are young. People keep telling you it's just baby fat. But you feel bad because you don't have many friends and can't wear the styles," Debbie said.

Debbie had originally tried a typical teen-age approach to dieting — the crash diet.

"I tried to starve myself and all I ended up with was low blood sugar," she said.

Teens often develop "anorexia nervosa," a chronic loss of appetite that comes from starvation dieting.

THE CONDITION results in weight loss, but also deprives the teen of vitamins and nutrients necessary for good health Dottie said, "and this is what we want to avoid."

"Oateen" will meet Fridays at 7:30 p.m. at the Lincoln Savings and Loan, Higgins and Gannon roads, Hoffman Estates. Teens will discuss their problems — alone. The adult sponsors will be available only to answer their questions and encourage the group to continue.

'Needless surgery kills thousands'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Doctors performed about 2.38 million unnecessary operations in 1974, causing 11,900 needless deaths and costing the public nearly $4 billion, a House subcommittee said Sunday.

"Unnecessary surgery wastes lives and dollars," the oversight and investigations panel said in a report.

It estimated Americans spent $3.92 billion for operations they didn't need — twice what the government pays for all health research financed through the National Institutes of Health.

Included in the total is more than $1 billion spent for unnecessary surgery on needy Medicaid or elderly Medicare patients, it said.

"TO THE EXTENT that the Department of Health, Education and Welfare has failed to implement cost control procedures mandated by Congress, it can be said HEW is responsible for waste of more than $1 billion," the report said.

The subcommittee was expected to question HEW Secretary David Mathews about its findings at hearings Monday on government control of Medicare and Medicaid costs.

The study was based on testimony from hearings last year, a review of medical literature, studies done under government contract, and information from hospitals and other sources. It takes note of a recent survey of surgery in 95 hospitals, which found nearly half the post-operative complications and 35 per cent of the deaths studied were preventable, a subcommittee aide said.

The panel arrived at its statistical conclusions on the basis of a report by (Continued on Page 2)

Des Plaines invited into consumer unit

Des Plaines has been asked to join six North suburban communities in forming a regional consumer protection agency. Niles Mayor Nicholas Blase says he believes a consumer agency composed of representatives from area communities would be more responsive to residents than county, state and federal agencies. About two weeks ago Des Plaines officials began considering the creation of a local consumer protection committee to investigate consumer complaints but study on the matter has not been completed. In addition to Des Plaines and Niles, Blase is also asking Skokie, Lincolnwood, Glenview, Park Ridge and Morton Grove to form the agency.

Arlington to mull Harms vacancy

Arlington Heights officials will meet tonight to decide how to fill a vacancy on the village board created last week by the resignation of Alice Harms. Trustee David Griffin says he will seek a special village election for Feb. 28, but Village Pres. James Ryan says Griffin's proposal will not allow enough time for campaign issues to be developed. Ryan has recommended a replacement be selected by trustees in open meetings. In the past, the board has filled vacancies in executive sessions. Walter J. Maczka, an unsuccessful candidate for the village board in April 1975, has asked to be considered for the vacancy.

Buffalo Grove gives up on bison

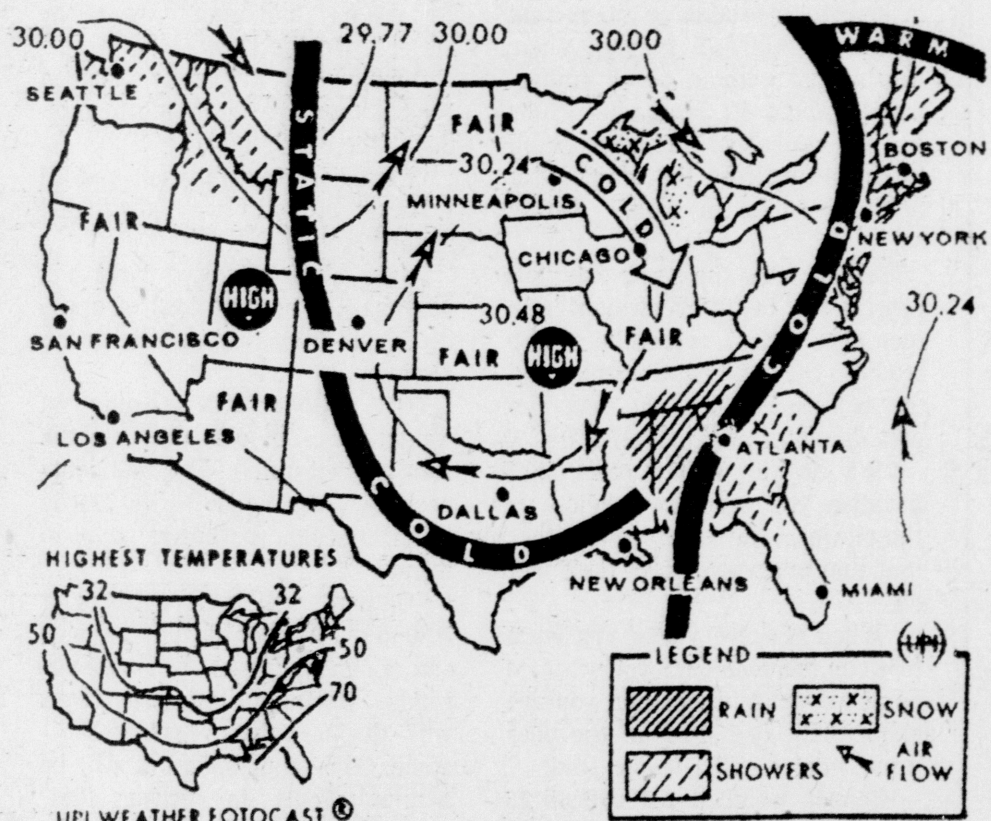

The Buffalo Grove Bicentennial Commission has abandoned plans to obtain three buffalo for the village. "I just don't see how it's feasible at this time," says Carol Polkow, secretary of the commission. "There's no available space right now, and the cost of fencing them in would be astronomical." The commission members suggested the village purchase the animals, but Village Pres. Edward Fabish says there are no funds available in the village budget.

Many ask to adopt abandoned baby

Nobody knows the baby girl's name or where she's from. But there's a lot of people who care about the baby, abandoned, only several days old and known only as Amy Doe. Lt. Leroy Weith of the Arlington Heights Police Dept. said the police desk and juvenile bureau Saturday were flooded with telephone inquiries about the baby and how the callers could go about adopting the infant. "We got quite a few calls," Weith said. Amy was discovered wrapped in a dish towel Thursday evening in the lost-and-found box at St. Edna Catholic Church, 2535 N. Arlington Heights Rd. She was estimated to be 12 hours old at the time of discovery. "There's no leads whatsoever," Weith added. "There's got to be somebody out there who knows about her." Amy was listed in good condition Sunday at Northwest Community Hospital and will be released to the custody of the Illinois Dept. of Children and Family Services Monday. All callers wanting to adopt the baby are being referred to the children and family services department.

Partly cloudy, colder...

AROUND THE NATION: rain is forecast over portions of Alabama, Mississippi and Tennessee, changing to showers and thunderstorms over Georgia, South Carolina and northern Florida. Snow is expected over the upper peninsula of Michigan. Skies will be fair elsewhere.

AROUND THE STATE: North: Snow flurries early in the day, changing to partly cloudy skies. Windy, colder, with highs in the 20s and lows 5 to 10 above. South: Windy, colder, high 28 to 36; low 8 to 18.

SATELLITE PHOTO taken at noon Sunday shows a large area of heavy cloudiness covering much of the central and eastern United States as a result of a storm system developing in the nation's midsection. Cloudiness persists over the northern and central Rocky Mountain states, while much of the West and the Southwest are clear.

For lieutenant governor bid

Wheeling GOP backs Anderson

The Wheeling Township Republican Organization has endorsed Joan Anderson in her campaign for the party's lieutenant governor nomination in the March 16 primary.

The vote, at a meeting of the precinct captains last week, approved Mrs. Anderson over primary opponent David O'Neal by a vote of 48 to 11, according to the township committeeman Fred Yonkers.

Mrs. Anderson, a trustee of the Metropolitan Sanitary District, "will be a great addition to the Republican ticket," Yonkers said.

The Wheeling organization also endorsed incumbent Republican legislators Eugene Schlickman in the 4th Legislative District, Donald Totten and Virginia Macdonald in the 3rd District and John Porter in the 1st District.

The organization did not endorse any of the four 4th District candidates running to fill the seat of the late State Rep. Robert Juckett. It endorsed Roger Keats in the 1st District to replace retiring State Rep. Brian Duff.

Yonkers said the organization's executive committee will discuss whether to recommend a presidential primary endorsement between President Ford and former California Gov. Ronald Reagan at a meeting Feb. 7. The organization meeting on that endorsement will be scheduled later.

Heart ills clinic slated by three area hospitals

Three Northwest suburban area hospitals will participate in a free public program on the prevention of heart disease.

"Signals for Survival" will be on the following dates: 2 to 6 p.m. Feb. 7, Holy Family Hospital, Des Plaines; 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. March 6, Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights; and 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. March 13, Lutheran General Hospital, Park Ridge.

The program also will be presented from 2 to 8 p.m. at the Bank of Elk Grove, Elk Grove Village.

Information on nutrition, blood pressure, risk assessment, triglycerides and cardiopulmonary resuscitation will be presented. Free blood pressure testing also will be offered.

Annual hospital meet at NW Community

Area residents are invited to attend Northwest Community Hospital's annual meeting at 7:30 p.m. today in the hospital auditorium, 800 W. Central Rd., Arlington Heights.

Hospital president Malcolm MacCoun, chairman of the board Harold Dotts, Auxiliary president Ruth Crawford and medical staff president Dr. Melvin Gibbel will summarize 1975 activities and outline future plans.

the American Hospital Assn., which said 14 million operations were performed in 1974, and on other studies showing a 17-per cent rate as unnecessary procedures and a 0.5 per cent surgical mortality rate. Its cost estimates were based on an average $1,650 cost for each procedure among all types of surgery performed.

THE REPORT SAID 1,700 of the estimated 11,900 deaths resulting from unnecessary surgery involved welfare patients under Medicaid. Medicare statistics were unavailable.

It quoted the Commission on Professional and Hospital Activities of Ann Arbor, Mich., which gathers data on hospital stays, as estimating that during the first six months of 1975 there were 500 deaths from abdominal hysterectomies and 2,000 from cholecystectomies — gall bladder removals. Using the subcommittee yardstick for determining unnecessary deaths, 85 of the hysterectomy deaths and 340 of the gall bladder deaths were needless. For a full year those totals could be doubled, a staff aide said.

The subcommittee said evidence suggests up to one-fourth of surgical procedures now performed in hospitals might be performed without hospitalization.

It noted testimony that pressure to operate is greater for doctors paid on a fee-for-service basis than for doctors in group practices.

THE SUBCOMMITTEE recommended:

- HEW require second professional opinions to confirm the need for elective or non-emergency surgery among Medicare and Medicaid patients;
- HEW study whether there are different rates of surgery between sala-

COOPERATIVE BLOOD REPLACEMENT PLAN 477-7500

Benefits in new Medicare plan are give-and-take

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford's proposed overhaul of the Medicare program would give new health benefits to ailing senior citizens with one hand and take some old benefits away with the other.

Considerably more would be taken away than given. Under Ford's proposal, all persons under Medicare who became ill would have to pay for at least one more visit to a doctor than they do now before the government starts picking up the bills.

And any Medicare beneficiary who has to stay in a hospital less than 50 days would be worse off under the President's program than now. That includes a vast majority of the persons 65 and over who become ill.

Only if doctor bills are above $250 in a single year, or if the Medicare patient is hospitalized more than 60 days, would the ailing oldster come out ahead under Ford's plan.

In exchange for eliminating about $2.8 billion in current benefits, the plan would give persons over 65 so-called "catastrophic" insurance, which would cost the government about $560 million. The net saving in Medicare expenses would be $2.2 billion.

Here is how the changes would work:

- Currently, a person under Medicare has to pay the first $60 of physician fees before receiving any benefits during a year. After the $60 deductible, the government pays 80 per cent of doctor's bills and the Medicare patient pays the rest until the year is up and the cycle starts again.

Ford's plan would raise the deductible to $77, a hike amounting to about the cost of another visit to the doctor. The 80-20 per cent sharing would remain the same. But after fees reach $250, Medicare would pay all remaining doctor bills for that year.

- A Medicare patient now pays the full cost of the first day in the hospital. After that, Medicare pays costs to the 60th day. Most patients are out of the hospital in a couple of weeks, so they only pay for the first day. After the 60th day, the patient has to pay part of the cost. His share increases until the 150th day, when Medicare pays nothing more.

Ford contends this system encourages Medicare patients to stay in the hospital longer than necessary, because it is free from the second to the 60th day. He proposes the hospitalized Medicare patient pay 10 per cent of costs after the second day, up to a maximum $500.

- Ford also would limit to 4 per cent Medicare payments for increases in physician fees due to inflation. The limit on higher hospital costs would be 7 per cent.

Inflation in the industry is considerably higher than those limits, and the plan leaves hanging in the air who would pay the difference.

Presumably, doctors and hospitals would bill patients for the excess not paid by the government. That could mean additional costs to Medicare patients over and above the $250 and $500 limits fixed in the President's program.

Wallace looks to firm Democratic party post

JACKSON, Miss. (UPI) — Alabama Gov. George Wallace, proving his strength in his native Deep South with a convincing win in Mississippi's Democratic precinct caucuses, says he has virtually ruled out a possible third party presidential bid.

Although the results may not be finalized for several days, Wallace held a strong lead Sunday in his race in Mississippi against four other Democratic candidates.

Many Mississippians who attended the caucuses listed themselves as uncommitted to any candidate, but with 630 of the state's 2,133 precincts reporting, Wallace had 493.47 delegate votes or 41.5 per cent. His nearest challenger, former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter, polled 209.73 votes or about 18 per cent.

Former vice presidential candidate Sargent Shriver was third with 155.39 votes, about 13 per cent.

Nearly 25 per cent of those taking part in the preferential polling listed themselves as uncommitted.

"I believe you could say I have ruled out the probability of running as a third party candidate," Wallace said in Plant City, Fla., Saturday night.

It was the closest he has come to ruling out a repeat of his 1968 run as the American Independent Party candidate, although aides said his saying "probability" instead of "possibility" left him the option of changing his mind.

"He has moved a step closer to an absolute and firm Democratic party position," an aide said Sunday.

The aide reiterated Wallace's pledge that if he fails to win the Democratic nomination, this will be his last campaign for the presidency.

The Mississippi race had been billed as a test of Wallace's strength in the Deep South, and especially as a test of his ability to draw votes against Carter.

GEORGE WALLACE, with a convincing win in his native Deep South, says he has virtually ruled out a possible third party presidential bid. An aide said "he has moved a step closer to an absolute and firm Democratic party position."

South African troops in Angola are pulling out

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — South Africans learned Sunday for the first time that 1,200 South African soldiers had been fighting against Marxist forces in the Angolan civil war but are now in the process of pulling out.

Although Defense Minister Piet Botha was not scheduled to make the formal announcement to Parliament on the withdrawal until early this week, the government lifted censorship that had forbidden mention of South African military involvement.

"South Africa has started withdrawing its troops and technicians from Angola," the Johannesburg Sunday Express reported. The Sunday Times carried a similar report.

The government Sunday allowed newspapers and broadcasting stations for the first time to refer to South African troops following a statement by Jorge Sangumba, official spokesman of the National Union for the Total Independence of Angola. He said South African troop withdrawal would be completed this week.

Botha said Saturday that "South Africa is now not prepared to fight on behalf of the free world alone."

South Africa's involvement and the government's earlier decision to suppress all news of it could spark heated debate this week when it is raised in parliament which is meeting in Cape Town.

Meanwhile, National Union leader Jonas Savimbi warned that the West must act to help anti-Communist guerrillas or Angola could become a Soviet satellite.

Savimbi, in remarks distributed in Lusaka, Zambia, said, "Western nations are still not alive to the real dangers of the war in Angola."

"If Western opinion can be kept alert, Western nations eventually will come forward with aid. I am confident the West will realize if it does not help, Angola could become a Russian satellite."

At the same time, one of the two Western-backed Angolan guerrilla movements said it had "very favorable" responses to its requests to the U. S. and Europe for sophisticated weapons and mercenaries.

The other movement condemned the United States for failing to establish what it termed a diplomatic or military balance in the civil war.

London Sunday Times correspondent Will Ellsworth-Jones, with the Communist-backed forces in Angola, said Sunday Cuban troops "are playing an increasingly large part in the direction, organization and even, at times, in the fighting."

An estimated 10,000 Cuban troops are fighting on the side of the Soviet-backed and supplied Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola.

Kissinger back from Europe

June arms treaty possible

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger returned from Europe Sunday, convinced the United States and the Soviet Union could complete a strategic arms treaty by June at a Washington summit meeting with Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev.

A senior official aboard Kissinger's jetliner, which brought the secretary back from Madrid, said the United States was "within one or two decisions of getting an agreement by June."

The official also said there is a "fifty-fifty chance" President Ford will visit the Middle East during the second half of April to demonstrate the United States is keeping its hand in the Middle East peace-keeping effort.

The official said prospects for a diplomatic settlement in Angola were fading, and it looked like military victory for the Cuban and Soviet-supported Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola.

He added Cuban intervention in Angola, and the appearance of Cuban advisers in Algiers and Guinea-Bissau, torpedoed any U.S. desire to pursue detente with Premier Fidel Castro.

Kissinger met with President Ford Sunday afternoon to report on his week-long visit to Copenhagen, Moscow, NATO headquarters in Brussels, and Madrid.

In Spain, Kissinger and Foreign Minister Jose Maria Arellano Saturday signed a five-year agreement tightening U.S. military ties with Spain and giving Generalissimo Francisco's heirs an indirect link to NATO. Spain has been unacceptable to other European NATO countries because of Franco.

Kissinger and Ford also are expected to discuss the Middle East before the arrival in Washington Tuesday of Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin. The senior official said Kissinger believes the United States now must concentrate on revitalizing the search for Middle East peace.

The question is, the official said, whether to go through the Geneva Peace conference machinery. He indicated Kissinger's step-by-step diplomacy may be superseded.

PLA won't stay in Lebanon: Syria

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Syria has assured all parties that it would respect Lebanese sovereignty and withdraw Palestinian (PLA) troops which had crossed into Lebanon from Syria as soon as the security situation allowed, government sources said Sunday.

The warring factions agreed to a 48-hour timetable to restore security but sniping and looting continued despite tough enforcement of the latest truce by Syrian Army officers and Palestinian troops.

Scattered sniping and gun duels raised the weekend toll to at least 10 dead and 50 wounded and the estimated toll since civil war erupted last April to more than 60,000 dead and 21,000 wounded.

In the most serious incident, leftist Nasserite gunmen clashed with Christian Phalangist positions at the Holiday Inn after nightfall. Both sides traded rocket and machine gun fire for about 10 minutes.

Palestinian patrols captured and burned the cars of at least five looters in uptown Beirut, witnesses said.

But the three-day-old ceasefire the 26th of the war, generally held and thousands of citizens left their homes for the first time in weeks to stroll in bright sunshine along the seafloor.

Syrian Foreign Minister Abdel Halim Khaddam, the chief truce negotiator, held talks with political leaders, including right-wing Christians, to reassure them that Syria has no intention of taking over Lebanon despite its intervention last week to force a cease-fire.

In return, the Lebanese agreed to a 48-hour timetable which called for opening of all roads Sunday night and the withdrawal of all gunmen from Beirut and the countryside over a 36-hour period beginning at 6 a.m. Monday and ending at 6 p.m. Tuesday.

Lebanese army and internal security forces will guard the roads and highways while units of the 1,000 Palestine Liberation Army troops from Syria now in Lebanon will supervise security in western Beirut and in the Bekaa Valley and lower Mt. Lebanon region where most of them are stationed.

Street vendors set up stalls along the Corniche near Beirut's "Pigeon Rocks" tourist landmark.

But pedestrians and motorists gave a wide berth to the luxury hotel area, still occupied by gunmen from leftist and right-wing factions and streets in the once-bustling restaurant and bar area around the hotels remained deserted.

Palestine Liberation Army troops, in full battle order, patrolled the western sector of the city to keep gunmen off the streets under the cease-fire agreement.

'Over the Cuckoo's Nest' wins Golden Globe awards

- "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest" grabbed a total of six statuettes at the 33rd Annual Golden Globes Awards Saturday night, including Best Picture, Best Actor and Best Actress. The awards were presented by the Hollywood Foreign Press Association. Jack Nicholson and Louise Fletcher, who starred in "Cuckoo's Nest," won top male and female awards. Milof Forman won the Globe for Best Director. Laurence Hauben and Bo Goldman won awards for screenplay. Walter Matthau won for best actor in a comedy picture, "The Sunshine Boys." Ann-Margret was named best Actress in a musical or comedy for "Tommy."

- Tom Alderman, Gov. Daniel Walker's director of communications asked for a replica of the Maltese falcon used in the famous Humphrey Bogart film. By mistake Columbia Pictures sent him the original. Now, the problem is, Columbia wants it back . . . and everyone else wants to possess it. Alderman said he has every intention of keeping it, although he might reconsider because "you'll never know just how high they (Columbia) will go" in negotiations.

- Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin Sunday said he would try to reach mutual understanding with U.S. leaders on new Middle East peace initiatives during his visit to Washington this week.

- Norbert Schultze, the composer of "Bombs against England," and "Forward with Rommel" celebrates his 65th birthday Monday. Those Nazi wartime songs are said to have been catchy tunes popular with Luftwaffe pilots during the Battle of Britain and the Afrika Korps at the height of German conquests during World War II. He also wrote "Song of a Young Sentry," and "Lili Marlene" . . . sometimes sung today.

Move to quash Patty trial due today

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — On Monday, the day before the opening of what one defense attorney forecast will be the "trial of the century," U.S. District Judge Oliver J. Carter will hear arguments on a late-hour motion to quash bank robbery charges against Patricia Hearst.

The trial, scheduled to begin Tuesday with the selection of a jury, is expected to last eight weeks. In testimony under oath, Miss Hearst is expected to give her own version of the strange circumstances making the case unique in legal history.

The motion to drop the indictment, along with several others, was filed late Friday. It asserted the government withheld from the grand jury evidence that may have been "exculpatory."

"We the defense team believe that if the grand jury had all the evidence available in the case, they would never have indicted Patty," Tom May, a defense lawyer, said.

"The forceful nature of her abduction . . . the violent and dangerous character of her abductors were not brought up."

This is the same argument that chief defense counsel F. Lee Bailey has said will be Miss Hearst's defense in the trial.

He said she was involved in the $10,960 bank robbery April 15, 1974, in San Francisco — 10 weeks after her abduction by the Symbionese Liberation Army — because "of physical coercion, and fear, and threat of death."

Immediately after the holdup, U.S. Attorney James L. Browning Jr. himself said, "I think this is the first time in the annals of legal history that a kidnap victim has shown up in the middle of a bank robbery."

These circumstances led E. John Kleines, a Hearst corporation attorney assisting the defense, to say the case will be "the trial of the century."

Browning will present in evidence a tape recording made by Miss Hearst, then calling herself Tania, in which she proclaimed herself a revolutionary and said she participated of her own free will.

The prosecutor also has bank camera pictures of Miss Hearst, and a witness who says she told him the same thing two months later.

Trade fair launches entrepreneurs

Kids' business acumen on display

by LUISA GINETTI

Andrew Carnegie, the 19th Century entrepreneur, would no doubt have looked on with pride at the young people lining the mall at the Randhurst Shopping Center this weekend.

Instead of doing the shopping, these kids were doing the selling at the Junior Achievement annual Trade Fair, where the spirit of the American business ethic was in full swing.

More than 100 students manned 33 booths at the fair where everything from trunk lid closers to terrariums were being sold. Company sponsors for the students included Illinois Bell Telephone, Marshall Field and Co., Union Oil, Sears Roebuck and Co., Illinois Central Gulf Railroad and many more.

Each booth was operated by students who have formed their own business companies to promote and sell their products.

"WE LEARN HOW to run a business and how to sell and make a profit," Jayne Fletcher, 15, of Mount Prospect, said. Jayne's company, Creative Creations, was selling beer can lamps with the cans supplied by National Can Co.

"Team work is a lot of it and it's also a good way to meet people from other companies," Jayne said.

Dale Kimball, 16, of Schaumburg, said Junior Achievement gives students a chance to be creative and learn the business trade. "I love it," he said, as he demonstrated his company's product, stick-on animals.

"If we have any problems we go to our advisors (Western Electric Co.) and they help us out. If it's up to me we'll be back here again next year," Dale, an officer with the company, Rings and Things, said.

Mike Brierty, 16, of Mount Prospect, lauded JA for the opportunities it provides young people. "The only way to learn something is to try it yourself," Mike said. He is an officer with Wee Bells Co., which sold stone wishing wells at the fair. The company is sponsored by Illinois Bell Telephone, which sponsors more JA companies than any other firm in the area.

HUGH SISSON, 16, of Arlington Heights, also with Wee Bells, said JA has been part of his life for three years. "I like JA because it teaches us about business and how to make our own company and run it."

Hugh said all aspects of business are learned from labor to promotions to sales and management. Workers in each company are paid hourly rates for their work and officers in the company receive salaries.

He said the amounts can range from 25 cents an hour to 40 cents an hour for laborers and up to $4 per month for officers.

Valerie Steiner, sponsor for Wee Bells, said companies such as Illinois Bell Telephone participate in JA for many reasons. "It's partly public relations but we're also interested in future business. We are looking to young people because they are the leaders of tomorrow."

John Grabowski, advisor from National Can Co., said the JA program helps students get a greater appreciation for how the business community runs.

"It's an education on both sides because the sponsors get to learn how business works in its entirety," Grabowski said. "It's just like anything else in life. You get out of it what you put into it."

Andrew Carnegie could appreciate that.

Trash hike veto 'political': trustee

Arlington Heights Trustee David Griffin charged Saturday that Village Pres. James T. Ryan's veto of a 8.3 per cent garbage rate increase was done for political reasons and could lead to a breach of contract lawsuit against the village.

Griffin's comments came in the wake of Ryan's decision to overrule a 7-to-2 vote by the village board Jan. 19 which approved the increase with Laseke Disposal Co. Ryan said any increase above the 5 per cent annual adjustment guaranteed in the five-year contract with Laseke "is unwarranted and unwise at this time."

Griffin, Ryan's unsuccessful opponent in last year's village president election, said Ryan's motives behind the veto were political and not based on realities.

"HE IS MISLEADING the people of Arlington Heights by indicating the contract limits increases to five per cent," Griffin said. He said the contract, in addition to the five per cent annual adjustment, provides that increases in dumping costs will be paid by the village.

While the village board approved the additional 3.3 per cent increase for dumping charges, Laseke's requests to be reimbursed for higher fuel and postage costs and higher social security payments were rejected.

Griffin said the dumping charge was discussed in committee meetings and at the board level, and Ryan should have made his reasons public then for opposing the increases. The trustee said the increased charges have been justified and verified and the village is obligated to pay for them under terms of the contract.

Griffin said a veto of the rate increases could mean a breach of contract and lead to Laseke filing a lawsuit against the village.

"This (veto) is intended to put board members on the spot, but I think if the board acts responsibly, there is an excellent chance to override the veto," Griffin said. "I have faith in the people to understand what this veto really is."

Snake handlers appeal Tennessee court ruling

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The little mountain church near Newport, Tenn., was filled on Aug. 4, 1973, when pastor Liston Pack lifted a brown wooden box from beneath the rostrum and took out a diamondback rattlesnake about five feet long.

Pack held it briefly and returned it to the box. Alfred Ball, a leader of the congregation, removed the snake a little later and handled it. A couple of others also held it. None was bitten.

The service was different from many others like it because an agent of the Tennessee Bureau of identification was seated in the congregation. He was there because Pack's brother and another member of the congregation had died a few months earlier from drinking strychnine.

SNAKE HANDLING and poison swallowing are central to the faith of the Holiness Church of God in Jesus' Name, a small sect with churches scattered throughout the hills of southern Appalachia. Several states, including North Carolina, Alabama, Virginia and Tennessee, have outlawed the practice.

Nothing much has been done about enforcement, however, although the Tennessee Supreme Court in 1948 upheld the constitutionality of a state law which forbids displaying a dangerous snake "in such manner as to endanger the life or health of any person."

But after the poisoning incident at Newport, Tennessee sought an end to poison swallowing and snake handling in a civil suit. Pack and Alfred Ball were fined and sentenced to jail for 30 and 20 days on a finding that they had violated a court order in the state's favor.

The local court barred the handling of snakes but permitted the drinking of poison if not passed to any other person. The Tennessee Supreme Court eventually prohibited both practices on the ground they were a nuisance.

RECOGNIZING IT was removing "the theological heart of the Holiness Church," the Tennessee court nevertheless held that the state's interest in the welfare of its citizens permitted the ban.

Citing the Constitution's guarantee of freedom of religion, the lawyers for Pack and Ball are appealing to the U.S. Supreme Court. None of the court's previous cases has dealt with a state court's decision that "an individual's chosen method of worship constituted a public nuisance" and could be banned permanently, they said.

Their method of worship is based on Mark 16: 17-18, which reads:

"And these signs shall follow them that believe; in my name shall they cast out devils; and shall speak with new tongues;

"THEY SHALL TAKE up serpents; and if they drink any deadly thing, it shall not hurt them; they shall lay

REV. LISTON PACK, a minister of the Holiness Church of God in Jesus' Name, raises a rattlesnake while preaching at Newport, Tenn., in April of 1973. The Tennessee Supreme Court has barred the handling of snakes and swallowing poison. Attorneys are appealing the Tennessee ruling to the U.S. Supreme Court.

hands on the sick, and they shall recover."

The state supreme court's lengthy opinion cited Ball's testimony explaining the practices:

"We don't take up serpents, handle fire or drink strychnine to test the faith of the people at all. That's not the point of it. These are signs that God said would follow the believers. They're not to test the faith of the person doing it. It's simply and only to confirm the Word of God. That's all God intended the signs for, and that's the only reason we do them."

The opinion noted that both the Old and New Testaments contain language which seems to conflict with the sect's view.

For instance, Ecclesiastes says: "Surely the serpent will bite without enchantment, and the babler is no better."

AND PAUL in his first letter to the Corinthians warns, "Neither let us tempt Christ, as some of them also tempted, and were destroyed of serpents."

The Holiness Church of God in Jesus' Name was founded in Tennessee in 1909 by George Went Hensley, who in a dramatic experience atop White Oak Mountain confronted and seized a rattlesnake which he took back to the valley and admonished the people to "take up or be doomed to eternal hell."

Ford veto to get election-year test

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The first test of election-year Republican support for a major presidential veto comes in Congress Tuesday.

Democrats predict enough defections among Republicans to revive the vetoed $45 billion appropriations bill for the departments of Labor and Health, Education and Welfare.

The vote is part of a busy week in Congress that expects: Senate confirmation of George Bush as the new CIA chief, House approval of the Senate-passed ban on aid to Angola, and a vote on a major job-creating bill backed by Democrats.

Administration spokesmen urged Republicans to sustain the Labor-HEW veto. Ford has called the bill a "classic example of unchecked spending."

THE BILL, to which Congress added $925 million over Ford's requests, would pay for programs for 15 months ending Sept. 30, 1976.

The Angola issue is part of the $112 billion defense appropriations measure, passed by the Senate and coming before the House Tuesday. The Senate bill says no money can be used for direct or indirect aid in the Angolan fighting, a provision strongly opposed by the White House.

Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin will speak to a joint session of House and Senate Wednesday.

Bush, former U.S. envoy in Peking, is expected to get easy confirmation for the CIA post. Ford promised that Bush, a one-time chairman of the Republican National Committee, would not be considered as his running mate in this year's election.

THE HOUSE takes up a $6.2 billion public works bill Thursday that was designed by House Democratic leaders to create 600,000 jobs, mostly in private industry, by paying for local construction projects.

Democrats see the bill as a major election-year issue — a job-creating measure in a year of continuing high unemployment.

The House is expected to give quick approval to a $6.4 billion bill to carry out the big railroad reorganization plan that takes effect April 1. The bill was cut from $7.6 billion when Ford threatened a veto of the larger amount.

Graham Martin, former U.S. ambassador to South Vietnam, will tell the House International Relations Committee Tuesday about the U.S. evacuation of Saigon last April 30. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger will detail for the Senate Foreign Relations Committee the administration's request for $3 billion in military aid for the Middle East.

The House Intelligence panel is expected to take final action on its report on the CIA and other intelligence agencies. The Senate Intelligence panel is expected to act on a bill to reorganize such agencies.

The way we see it

Keep education out of politics

The old axiom — that schools and politics shouldn't mix — still makes good sense.

Last week we reported that a political party in Schaumburg Township may be ready to involve itself in the selection of school board members.

The group is the Republican Organization of Schaumburg Township (ROOST). Last week it announced it was considering active and formal involvement in the April school board elections.

ROOST officials, with the interest of such political leaders as State Rep. Donald Totten, R-Hoffman Estates, and Virginia Hayter, Hoffman Estates village president, are polling their membership to measure interest in recruitment and endorsement of candidates for the three open Dist. 54 seats.

At first glance, the plan would seem to encourage competition among candidates. But there's a much more serious problem with the injection of partisan politics into school board elections that destroys whatever good effects it might have.

Suppose, for example, the Schaumburg Democrats got into the fray and endorsed their own slate of candidates. The danger then would be a full-scale political contest, possibly even the awarding of jobs on the basis of patronage, not merit, to the winning party. We'd find such an outcome to be the surest way to downgrade the quality of public education.

In the Northwest suburbs, school boards have been traditionally non-partisan and independent. The caucuses which exist in many local communities tend to encourage such non-partisanship, even if they often discourage healthy competition for school board seats.

This is not to say, however, that politically active persons shouldn't become active in school board elections. But formal participation by political parties could place school boards under a partisan shadow that could only threaten education.

Political parties have a wide role to play in our society in 1976, but to maintain the integrity of our school systems, we believe it serves the public interest to keep them as far away as possible from local school boards.

Howlett, come out!

Greta Garbo he isn't, but gubernatorial candidate Michael J. Howlett is making it increasingly clear that he "wants to be left alone."

Howlett, the personable Illinois secretary of state, is campaigning for the Democratic nomination for the state's highest office against incumbent Dan Walker.

Although it's no match for Dashing Dan's glittering grin, Howlett is able to manage a rather pleasant smile from time to time. And though he may not seem as facile of mind or tongue, no one has accused Mike Howlett of being a dullard.

Are candidates supposed to run from a position of obscurity? Or is Howlett afraid Walker will dash circles around him?

One can only speculate that, with the support of Chicago's Mayor Daley, Howlett feels he's already appealed to the most important audience, and meeting the press and commoners would only be downhill.

Low profile campaigns have been tried before, but from a submarine?

You want to sit on my knee, sonny boy?

SCLC questions hiring editorial

On behalf of the board of directors of the suburban chapter of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, I am writing in response to your editorial and caricature entitled, "Hiring Study: Results Needed," that appeared in the Jan. 15 issue of your newspaper.

I would like to assure you that SCLC has no intention of not disclosing the results of our inquiries, no matter what the results may be. This letter is intended to clarify the criteria upon which our study is based. We have given no cause to make you assume that we will not publish our findings in any case and for this reason we find your editorial unreasonable.

FIRST OF ALL, the use of such words as "target" and "emotional" are unfortunate. As you are fully aware, these are words used to agitate.

Secondly, the issue relative to the SCLC study is not what the Chicago Police Department is doing or not doing. The issue is obedience or lack of obedience to law. There are federal and state affirmative action regulations attached to revenue sharing and law enforcement funds; and while we have developed a hypothesis based on observation, no conclusions have been reached relative to compliance or lack of compliance on the part of the suburban police departments involved.

Your editorial makes certain innuendos that the study may not be released should the results indicate that there is no problem. We call upon your newspaper to withhold any and all emotional statements until the study is complete.

As a newspaper serving the public, we hope that your research staff will conduct its own study of the matter. Should you need assistance, we are sure that some of the schools might be willing to help. After all, they, too, receive federal and state dollars and are required to recruit and employ black and other minorities for classroom and administrative positions. Should the schools not be able to help, the libraries that receive state and federal funds. They, too, are required to recruit and consider blacks and other minorities. Should this fail, try municipal officials who receive state and federal funds for the fire department, road improvements and other municipal services. Also try the banks who receive FDIC dollars and hold U.S. Treasury funds and notes. Of course, we also have the suburban housing developments that receive federal money for subsidized housing.

THE POINT IS, all of the above suburban institutions are required to maintain and implement affirmative action programs designed to affirmatively employ and upgrade blacks and other minorities and females for employment opportunities.

'Library vote desirable'

We are asking the City Council of Rolling Meadows to reconsider their vote on the library referendum.

The Rolling Meadows Library is a cultural center in our city, and apparently the people are becoming increasingly aware of this fact as library attendance and circulation soars.

As there is a shift from the material to the spiritual aspects of life, people become more interested in the arts. There is a growing request for literature and media of this kind. The "Picture Lady" program in the schools of Rolling Meadows is an example.

With adult educational opportunities increasing at a rapid rate there is a growing need for more sophisticated reference material. To maintain a status quo is to fall behind.

For many school children, the library is their main source of information, for others, a place of enjoyable experiences.

As all these requirements expand, the library becomes less and less able to carry out its commitments to "education, information and entertainment."

So, again, we ask the City Council for their help in giving the citizens of Rolling Meadows a chance to make their preferences and values known.

Hits 'sellout'

Re: "City vote opposers fear tax jump," The Herald, Jan. 16.

We have been very happy enjoying the open spaces of Prospect Heights since we moved here two and a half years ago. As reported in the Jan. 16 issue of your paper by Diane Merigas, the Brattans had this privilege for almost 50 years.

Perhaps because we do value so much the rural atmosphere of this community do we find it impossible to understand the idea of the planned "Brattan sellout."

We would like to ask the Brattans to answer the following questions: have you lived on your land for so long without pleasure? Is there nothing besides the dollars to pass on to the generations that follow?

It seems to us that, at your advanced age, you are looking for a windfall rather than a fair return on your investment. Is the developer and high-density zoning the only way to satisfy your selfishness?

We are urging residents to vote "yes" on Jan. 31 because we cannot think of a better place to raise our children.

The almanac

(by United Press International)

Today is Monday, Jan. 26, the 26th day of 1976 with 340 to follow.

The moon is approaching its new phase.

The morning stars are Mercury and Venus.

The evening stars are Mars, Jupiter and Saturn.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Aquarius.

American Gen. Douglas MacArthur was born Jan. 26, 1880.

On this day in history:

In 1837, Michigan became the 26th state.

In 1861, Louisiana seceded from the Union.

In 1950, India ceased to be a British dominion and became the Republic of India.

In 1971, Russia said it had landed an unmanned spacecraft on Venus and that it was sending data back to earth.

A thought for the day: General of the Army Douglas MacArthur said, "It is fatal to enter any war without the will to win it."

Fence post

letters to the editor

In reviewing your newspaper, we notice that you advertise employment opportunities with a number of suburban companies doing business with the federal government. Federal regulations require that such companies should do business with other companies that also practice affirmative action. In this regard, how many black and other minorities does your newspaper employ, especially in public contact positions? We are not "judging"; we only raise the question.

It is a sound and legitimate scientific approach to include observation as a criterion upon which a hypothesis is established. Therefore, one would need to be blind not to see that there are few, if any, blacks in Northwest suburban banks, police departments, municipal buildings, etc. However, only research can determine whether or not the absence of blacks in these institutions is the result of overt racism, ignorance, or a lack of response and/or interest on the part of blacks.

In passing federal revenue sharing legislation, it was the intent of Congress to delegate to local officials the maximum authority for solving problems at the local level. In President Ford's State of the Union Address on Monday, he proposed consolidation of 59 health care programs and their delegation to the local level. Therefore, in accepting such funds, local municipalities are expected to ensure that the priorities of Executive Order 11246 relative to equal opportunities for minorities and females are carried out in an affirmative manner; and, that minority entrepreneurs have the opportunity to compete for business with those entities doing business with the federal government.

WE ARE confident that you are aware that some police departments, fire departments, schools and banks recruit and employ staff outside their geographical authority. For example, if a police department, school district or a bank doing business with federal government employs individuals from Chicago, Waukegan, Evanston, Elgin or from another community, they have then established a recruitment base that transcends their geographical authority. And to this extent, they should be sure the job openings are also disseminated to newspapers and organizations serving the black and minority community in the broader areas. However, it should be noted that Boulder, Colo. has less than 1 per cent minority population and yet they have a black mayor. Obviously, a community need not have a large minority population in order to have minorities employed.

There is no secret that SCLC is the advocate of minorities in suburbia. More than 100 major companies, schools and elected officials can attest to the professional, non-emotional way SCLC has conducted itself in the suburbs. SCLC is composed of suburbanites who pay taxes and who care.

Please don't discourage us by promoting a "?" about our efforts. Many of the blacks that live in your area of newspaper circulation buy your newspapers and a number of our companies in the SCLC MIRCouncil advertise in your newspaper; and for this, we salute you. However, remember that your newspaper enjoys a public franchise, and in this regard, we ask you not to forget the five per cent minority population in your newspaper circulation area.

He's encouraged by Ford support here

In general, Herald reporter Steve Brown's column on January 20, "Elections Pace Bicentennial '76," was a good analysis of the year's upcoming elections.

I must, however, take exception to Mr. Brown's observation that the Northwest suburbs appear to be Reagan strongholds and that Ford followers admit that few people are really excited about the Ford campaign.

As expected, there is Reagan support in the largely Republican Northwest suburbs. Most of this support is reflected in a minority of vocal citizens whose passion for their candidate must be admired, but who do not represent the majority opinion of Republicans in the Northwest suburbs.

While working for the election of President Ford throughout the 12th Congressional District, I have been most encouraged by the overwhelming support for our President and the sincere enthusiasm for his candidacy. This support and enthusiasm has been expressed by Republican elected officials, Republican committeemen, committeewomen and precinct captains, and particularly by Republicans who may not be active in a political organization, but who will be voting in the primary on March 16.

Comments to me about President Ford have ranged from, "He's a man of strength and integrity whose openness is an example for all government officials to follow," to "He's the first President in a long time who has consistently tried to hold down inflationary government spending and to decrease government interference in the lives of the people."

Whether at a neighborhood coffee for President Ford or a precinct captain's meeting, Republicans have told me, "President Ford is the only Republican who can beat the Democrats."

With the backing of the last two Republican governors of Illinois, the backing of two out of three of the Northwest suburbs' representatives in Congress in the last 30 years and the enthusiastic support of the vast majority of Republican voters in the 12th Congressional District, the Northwest suburbs are a Ford stronghold.

This superior strength will be shown in the President's March 16 Primary victory and in his victory over any Democratic challenger in next November's general election.

Life-saving data only seconds away

Alexian adds index on poisons

A compact new machine is saving time, money and may save lives in the emergency room at Alexian Brothers Medical Center, Elk Grove Village.

A microfilm index of more than 6,000 poisonous substances is now available to doctors and nurses at the flick of a switch.

Drugs, household cleaning compounds, cosmetics, house plants, wild mushrooms and snakes — virtually anything that could seriously poison the human body — is catalogued by brand name, generic name and slang terms of micro-fiche cards that are updated every three months.

THE CARDS CARRY up-to-date information on the chemical makeup, effect, toxicity and treatment of the poison.

At Alexian Brothers, the micro-filmed poison catalog, trade named Poisindex, has eliminated the need to keep large index books which were cumbersome and sometimes lacked all the necessary information. Similar computer-style poison information systems are in use at other area hospitals.

"This is the most complete poison index I've seen in 20 years of medicine," said Dr. Bernard J. Moore, chairman of the department of emergency medicine at the center. "In many cases we can save time and money by telling someone who calls in that it's not necessary to come to the hospital, don't worry. Or, if the poison is serious, get in quick!"

THE POISINDEX reader and the first year's subscription of micro-fiche cards was a $1,400 gift to the hospital from the Schaumburg Jaycees.

"When the Jaycees asked what we needed in the emergency room, I said we'd like some kind of poison index," Moore said, explaining that the Poisindex was chosen because of its capacity to keep pace with the rapid mass production of new compounds. "The books we had before just couldn't keep up with the new chemical products," he said.

For example, there are six chemical variations of the popular household polish "Liquid Gold," all of which are catalogued in the Poisindex, Moore said.

Moore said the emergency room at Alexian Brothers typically gets two or more potential poisoning calls a day. Many involve small children who accidentally swallow a hazardous substance. Others are adults suffering various drug overdoses.

"THE MOST COMMON substances we don't have to look up," Moore said. "For the others, we can now get the information in a matter of seconds."

Contrary to popular belief, poisoning is not effectively treated with so-called antidotes, Moore said. "There are not too many really good antidotes. Charcoal, in what we used to call the 'universal antidote,' will slow down the absorption of some poisons. But the best treatment is to support whatever body function the poison affects. If the breathing slows down — speed it up."

A national team of physicians and toxicologists, specialists in the study of poison's effect on living organisms, prepare and update the treatments prescribed by the Poisindex. Moore termed the medical instructions "very modern and progressive."

Special cards provide information on poisonous snakes, mushrooms and houseplants.

"With the popularity of plants today many people know the names of the plants they have growing at home,"

Moore said. For those that do not, the Poisindex includes color pictures of plants, mushrooms and venomous snakes.

Adventure followed Busse's 'gold fever'

Franklin Busse of Arlington Heights gets this week's $5 award for his Backward Glance to the days of the gold rush in American history.

My grandfather, Henry Busse, was only 19 years old when he came to America from Hanover, Germany in 1848 — promising to report to his parents and their five other children what he found in this new land. His reports were so favorable the family came with in the year, settling on a farm at Algonquin and Busse roads in Elk Grove Township.

But Henry had an adventuresome spirit and in 1849, with two other young men, he took off by prairie schooner and joined a wagon train headed for the gold fields of California.

The trip took six months — from April to October — and there were Indian skirmishes all along the way.

Henry lived with his gun constantly strapped to him. His equipment consisted of a pickax. Living expenses were extremely high. He later told us how he paid $10 for two biscuits.

He didn't strike it rich, but found enough gold to stay out west five years. Then he returned — this time by ship to Panama, by foot across the Isthmus (the Panama Canal had not yet been built), by ship again to New Orleans and on up the Mississippi River.

He returned, not wealthy, but with a few thousand dollars in gold, enough to buy 150 acres of land adjoining his father's farm. He married Mary Behrens, a local girl, and lived to be 88 years old.

I had four sisters and two brothers, and all of us loved to listen to our grandfather from time to time as he described his experiences as a "forty-niner."

Reports of patient seduction increase

Sex therapy faces ethical queries

by AL ROSSITER JR.
ST. LOUIS (UPI)—One of the most pressing problems facing the rapidly expanding field of sex therapy today is the practice of therapists who sometimes seduce patients seeking cures to sexual problems.

This was an issue that arose frequently as a panel from a half-dozen fields discussed the ethical dilemmas that must be dealt with as more and more people search for ways to improve their sex lives.

There was general agreement that therapists who prey on vulnerable patients should be condemned. But left unanswered was the question of whether trained female "surrogates" should have sex with single male patients, a practice once used by pioneering sex researchers William H. Masters and Virginia E. Johnson who sponsored the unique conference.

The use of husband substitutes with female patients was dismissed as being impractical in today's society.

A LENGTHY discussion of sexual relations between therapists and patients was led by Yale University psychiatrist Fritz Redlich who said such sex with clients is frequent among many types of professionals including doctors, psychotherapists, educators, lawyers and ministers.

"The essence of this particular immorality is a form of exploitation and an abuse of human beings," Redlich told the two-day Conference on Ethical Issues in Sex Research and Sex Therapy that ended Friday.

He said there are two types of sexual relationships between patients and sex therapists.

In one type, Redlich said the patient is passive, dependent and often depressed with feelings of inadequacy. "The seduction of such a patient is indeed comparable to statutory rape.

"The result is termination of therapy and further disappointment and increased inability on the part of the patient to form social and sexual relationships."

REDLICH SAID the second type of sexual relationship occurs when an aggressive patient seduces the therapist. "Once the therapist succumbs, he is finished as a helping person whom the patient can respect and trust."

Dr. John Money, professor of medical psychology and pediatrics at Johns Hopkins University, said in all the cases he has heard of, the problem was that the patient wanted to fall in love with the therapist and not just have sex.

"And the therapist in the very highest proportion of the cases wanted simply to have sex and not to return the strong, long, enduring pair-bonding relationship of falling in love," he said.

Dr. Richard Green, professor of psychiatry at the State University of New York at Stony Brook, said that some clinics which permit the therapist to have sex with a patient specifically say in advance what the therapy will include. He asked, without receiving an answer, if this was unethical.

"THE ONLY THING I can say there is caveat emptor," said Dr. Judd Marmor of the University of Southern California and president of the American Psychiatric Association. "At least the patient is warned in advance and if the patient goes ahead voluntarily, he has either him or herself to blame."

But he said it is a different matter when the patient becomes involved with a therapist in a search for love.

"When, inevitably in the vast majority of instances, that expectation is shattered, then the patient is damaged. I have yet to see one that doesn't end up with bitterness, disappointment and in a few cases, a psychotic break."

Public meetings topic of seminar

"Getting the most from a public meeting" is the topic for a Community Leadership Training Center program Wednesday.

Public Service Director of the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission, Lorenz Aggens, an expert in the development of processes to facilitate interaction and decision making, will serve as program director.

The program will be held in the college board rooms, Building A, from 7 to 10 p.m. Tuition is $15. To register or gain further information, call 397-3000, ext. 410. The college is located at Roselle and Algonquin roads, Palatine.

IN ADDITION to serving on the National Council of Girl Scouts, Kris Howard has been instrumental in coordinating the move to the new headquarters of the Northwest Council of Girl Scouts in Elk Grove Village. She is also on the special gifts committee.

Kris Howard's heart belongs to Girl Scouts

by KAREN THOMPSON

Kris Howard is one of the more quiet leaders of the women's movement. She prefers to call it "the development of women."

After 14 years working with the Girl Scouts, from a troop leader when her oldest daughter was a Brownie to North Cook County Council president, Kris was recently elected to a three-year term on the National Council of Girl Scouts.

She believes in the Girl Scouts and their purpose. "I feel that the Girl Scouts are a leading force in the development of women around the world," said Mrs. Howard.

"People often ask me — what are the Girl Scouts doing that is new? To put that in perspective I would have to point out the reason Juliette Low founded the organization 63 years ago. She believed that every girl should have the opportunity to develop her capabilities and talents to the utmost and shouldn't be restricted because of sex.

"WHEN YOU STOP to think that she said this 63 years ago, in Savannah, Ga., you get some idea of the type of woman she was — call her a part of the early women's movement if you wish."

The Girl Scouts didn't participate in the women's liberation movement's work boycott, "Alice Doesn't Day." They aren't marching with placards in Washington. They are, in their own subtle way, working to better the lives of women throughout the world.

"We don't just teach girls to build campfires — we help them build character," said Mrs. Howard.

"Girl Scouts helps girls learn to follow their interests. There has always been a great deal of emphasis on individuality in the organization. The girls can pursue almost any endeavor that is safe and moral." She cited the winged (plane flying) and mounted (horse back riding) troops as examples of the diversity of programs available.

"OUR CAREER development program is one of the best received and most beneficial areas of concern," she added, pointing out that the Girl Scouts of America is part of the World Association of Girl Guides and Girl Scouts, the largest organization of women and girls in the world.

"I think a big plus for Girl Scouts is that it provides an informal atmosphere, different from home or school, in which girls can try many different things without the fear of failure," said Kris.

Although her duties as a delegate to the national board consist of meetings in New York and traveling to councils in various areas of the Midwest to plan conferences and conduct charter reviews, it is apparent that Kris' heart still lies at the grassroots level. Namely, the North Cook County Council which serves 19,000 members in the area.

CALLING HERSELF a facilitator, not a leader, Kris grins as she remembers her favorite slogan when she was in charge of a troop — "hang loose but keep the faith, baby."

"A leader must be there to help and encourage the girls, but she must also step back and let them do the decision-making. A good leader is someone who opens the windows of the world, but this must involve others — parents, members of the community," said Mrs. Howard.

She cited the lack of good "facilitators" as the major problem in the Girl Scout organization. Although membership is down a bit nationally, Kris attributed it to the fact that there are many girls on waiting lists — just hoping for a leader.

A native of Twin Falls, Idaho, Kris earned a degree in journalism from Northwestern University and then was employed in the communications division of the American Medical Association (AMA). There she met her husband, Dr. Ernest B. Howard, former executive vice president of the AMA and now in the dermatological department at the University of Chicago-Billings Hospital.

"HE'S BEEN VERY supportive and doesn't even complain if things get a little dusty around the house," said Kris.

In addition to her contributions to the Girl Scouts, Kris is involved in many other youth-oriented programs — the Palatine Township Youth Committee and the Palatine Center of the Infant Welfare League to name a couple.

"You can't do everything in life that interests you. I have deliberately chosen youth work because youth are the hope of the future. They keep me on my toes and are always challenging," she said. "I felt that in addition to spending time with my own children, I could be helping others at the same time."

Another highlight in Kris' volunteerism was serving on the original Women's Advisory Board of Harper College, the beginning of a women's interest program which today is a model for many other educational institutions. She has also been recently elected to the Board of Directors of Northwest Community Hospital.

IN BETWEEN this hectic schedule she also enjoys golf and tennis "so that I don't get fat sitting in all those meetings," she laughed.

Kris takes to task a few ideas of the women's movement, among them, the one that women should not stoop to volunteering their efforts. "I get some of the greatest opportunities to contribute in a variety of ways through volunteering," she said. "Volunteering has enabled me to broaden my interests. It has given me a wider perspective of life. Psychologically, I think it's good to do something sometimes because you want to, not for the money."

And as for the future of the Girl Scouts? "The question should be what do I see in the future for women," Mrs. Howard said adamantly.

"Our role is to help girls grow, become self-reliant, skilled, well-balanced, mature adults with a clear sense of their own identity and values. With the challenge facing women today, the role of the Girl Scouts is more important than ever. We must help girls learn to live happy lives and be of service to others. That is a big job."

Smoking becomes matter of worldwide concern

by ROBIN FRAMES and MARK FURST

(First of 10 parts)

The public can't say it wasn't warned.

More than a decade ago, a headline-making report by the U.S. Surgeon General officially labeled smoking as a threat to health. Five years ago, tobacco advertising was banned from radio and television.

Yet millions of people continue to smoke — including young people, some studies show, at increasingly earlier ages. Have the years of effort to raise public awareness to the hazards of smoking had no effect?

Despite all the appearances of a still-puffing public, recent years have in fact seen some significant changes, both in attitudes toward smoking and in techniques to diminish the tobacco habit's pervasiveness in modern society.

WHILE THE over-all number of smokers may not be decreasing dramatically, nonsmokers at least are becoming more outspoken. Tobacco products and advertising are coming under closer scrutiny and control. Some people want to eliminate public sale of cigarettes to minors. Others want to boost cigarette prices with higher taxes, using the money for anti-smoking campaigns. And particularly important, how-to-programs are being expanded for those who want to quit.

The scope of the effort is worldwide. France has undertaken an anti-tobacco campaign which, if successful, will cost the government some of the $2 billion a year the French spend on state-produced cigars and cigarettes. However, Health Minister Simone

Weil says that the loss will be balanced by the amount saved by not having to treat illnesses related to smoking, especially lung cancer.

ELSEWHERE, some 30 countries have introduced legislation to control smoking abuse. The World Health Organization recently chided its 145 members for not doing enough to curb smoking. In the words of Assistant Director-General Dr. Tjede de Rivero, "one of the greatest health hazards of modern times and yet avoidable."

In America, nonsmoking sections on commercial airlines, trains and buses are the rule, rather than the exception. Growing numbers of restaurants are offering separate areas for nonsmokers. Businesses are paying employees cash incentives to quit smoking and paying for courses to help them quit. Even the military segregates smokers and no longer distributes cigarettes in C-rations.

SMOKING & YOU

Cigarette smoking is essentially a 20th century habit encouraged by wars, by extensive advertising and by the development of remarkably efficient production facilities.

WITHIN THE last 15 years, however, there has been a concerted effort to make people aware that this personal and socially accepted habit is extremely dangerous.

A 25-year-old man who has never smoked cigarettes regularly can expect to live an average of six-and-one-half years longer than a man who smokes a pack or more daily, according to the American Cancer Society (ACS). Each year there are 93,000 cases of lung cancer in America and 84,000 deaths. Eighty per cent of the lung cancer deaths are caused by cigarette smoking.

Twenty-nine million Americans have managed to break the habit and an estimated 25 million would like to. Several new programs are available to smokers, using a wide variety of techniques to help people stop smoking. "Clinics give people the environment to explore their own smoking problem with the help of others," says June Walzer, director of the New York ACS quit smoking clinics.

Miss Walzer, assisted by ex-smoker volunteers, conducts several clinics per year for persons wishing to stop smoking in the New York-Metropolitan area. A typical clinic runs for 12 one-and-a-half hour sessions with an enrollment of some 100.

Through the help of a moderator and group discussion of smoking problems, each smoker tries to find an intense personal reason for wanting to stop and then attempts to change his smoking behavior and attitude toward smoking. The clinics decondition the smoker and teach him how to live without cigarettes.

Miss Walzer, who quit smoking seven years ago at a clinic, says there is a long waiting list. Even though cigarette smoking is still a widely accepted habit, help is available for those who want to kick the habit.

NEXT: Never too late.

The doctor says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Some calcium sources for milk intolerant

After many, many years of suffering from diarrhea, I was helped by the suggestion in one of your columns that the trouble might be from intolerance to milk.

One way to continue eating dry cereal is to pour's one fruit juice over it, particularly the unsweetened grape, pineapple or apple juice.

Please discuss how to obtain proper protein and calcium when one not only cannot tolerate milk or cheese but wishes to be a vegetarian. I used to love to prepare interesting meals for my family and now every mealtime becomes a crisis.

If one can't tolerate milk can one tolerate the dry powder milk?

More than 80 per cent of the adult blacks and 10 per cent of the adult whites have the same problem. And in this huge population about half of them become sick from consuming only one glass of milk.

Milk is a wonderful food and the principal source of calcium in our diet. People who can't use it are indeed handicapped. Not providing a product they can use is a form of discrimination. To solve the calcium problem many people simply have to resort to taking calcium tablets because of milk intolerance. I suppose this sorry state of affairs will continue until the dairy industry makes a serious effort to market a lactose-free product for the millions of people who need it. The technique of doing this has already been established and it is apparently not an expensive method. There is a vast untapped market waiting for the milk industry.

The number of foods that contain much calcium other than milk is pretty limited. You can use canned salmon and eat the bones, or sardines.

Collards contain 250 milligrams of calcium in three-and-a-half ounces. Mature bean seeds contain about 50 milligrams in each three-and-a-half ounces, cooked weight. Those wanting a more complete listing of the calcium values of food and other information on minerals and vitamins can send 50 cents for The Health Letter number 4-6 on Balanced Diet. Enclose a long-stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing. Address your letter to me in care of Paddock Publications, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

WHILE DRY skim milk is an excellent source of calcium and protein, it also contains lactose, the milk sugar that causes the problem.

You can get lots of adequate protein from any of the meats. If you are vegetarian and milk intolerant, you will have a much more difficult time. All mature bean seeds, and in particular soybeans, contain nearly complete protein. A diet using sufficient beans and other cereals, such as corn, can be used to meet all the needed protein requirements for adults. Children have greater needs during the growing years and I hate to see them do without at least the milk products with their good protein.

Beans give lots of people gas. This is caused in most instances by some small molecules of triple sugars in beans. We cannot digest these and they ferment causing gas. You can get rid of these triple sugars by soaking the beans at least three hours and discarding the soak water. Then cover the beans with boiling water and cook for at least 30 minutes and throw away the cooking water. Add fresh water and finish cooking. The triple sugars are discarded in the discarded water.

Novice cook troubled by over-salting food

Dear Dorothy: I'm new at cooking and am having a few annoying experiences. One thing I sure don't know what to do about is an oversalted dish. Would you help out? — Tim Franke

It happens to all of us, Tim. And we do strange things to combat it. Some cooks add a carrot or potato and these often absorb the salt. Several place a damp cloth over the pot, sprinkle flour on it and leave it for a short while. They say that as the steam comes in contact with the flour the salt is removed.

One reader wrote to report using a tablespoon of brown sugar and a tablespoon of white vinegar when a dish has been oversalted. With too-salty ham, some use a lemony soda drink or a sprinkling of brown sugar. On salty dishes that can take it, I'm prone to ready for a little curry powder.

Dear Dorothy: I've got one of those old dryers that takes forever to do the job. I've kept stewing about it after hearing friends worry aloud about their damp basements. I don't have the problem and suddenly realized my old-fashioned dryer has been the thing that has kept out the dampness and mustiness. —Grace Schmidt

Dear Dorothy: This might be useful for those who hate to shampoo their hair because water gets into their ears and causes annoyance. When I complained about it, a friend gave me a pair of earplugs made of wax and sponge. Wonderful! —Faith Dresser

Dear Dorothy: Some glue is stuck to a pair of good washable slacks. Nothing I've tried has budged the stuff. —Linda Greenspan

If it's regular glue, soaking in hot vinegar ought to take it off. Then rinse and launder.

Good Citizen award winners named

Sue Ellen Bohac

Cynthia Fischer

Three area girls have been named Good Citizen award winners for 1976 by Signal Hill Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution.

This is an annual award given to a high school senior for her outstanding qualities of service, leadership, dependability and patriotism. Each girl will now compete with representatives of other DAR chapters in a state contest and later at the national level. That winner receives a scholarship to the college of her choice.

The three area girls are Cynthia Fischer of Hoffman Estates, who has received the award at Conant High School; Sue Ellen Bohac of Rolling Meadows, the winner at Rolling Meadows High; and Julie Marie Schleif, Hoffman Estates, the representative of Hoffman Estates High.

ALL THREE ARE active in special interest clubs and service groups at their respective high schools. All rank high in their class scholastically.

Cynthia is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James W. Fischer and plans to attend the University of Illinois, majoring in biological sciences.

Sue, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bohac, will attend either Smith College, Northampton, Mass., or the University of Southern California, majoring in speech, theater and humanities.

Julie's choice is Gustavus-Adolphus College in St. Peter, Minn., to study music. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. David E. Schleif.

SIGNAL HILL DAR's Good Citizen chairman is Mrs. Ralph D. Brown of Hoffman Estates, who has also earned an award from her chapter. Named Outstanding Junior Member, she will represent the chapter at the Illinois state convention in Springfield in March. These representatives will later compete at state and national levels.

Mrs. Brown is also junior membership chairman of Signal Hill. This project supports the Helen Pouch Society which provides scholarships, medical aid and financial assistance to two DAR-owned schools.

Cancer brunch raises $9,450

Northwest Suburban Unit of the American Cancer Society reports it raised $9,450 at its second annual Holiday Benefit Brunch. The amount exceeded by nearly $4,000 proceeds from last year's fund raiser.

Guest speaker was Bill Kurtis, Channel 2 newscaster, and angels sharing part of the expenses were the Richard Beckmans, the H. Edison Birginal Foundation, the C. P. Clares, the O. Curtis Jacobsens and the Blaine Yarringtons.

Holy Family cites volunteers

At a recent luncheon hosted by Holy Family Hospital, 94 volunteers received awards for service ranging from 100 to 20,000 hours.

The 20,000-hour volunteer was Fran Armstrong of Glenview, followed by Malvina Fox, Des Plaines, with 5,000 hours.

Among those giving 2,000 hours was one man, Bill Kedrowski of Des Plaines. Others were Mary Bremer, Rose Jonas, Des Plaines; Dorothy Brefeld, Arlington Heights; Helen Brenner, Fran McMahon, Phyllis Sommers, Helga Vakkinen, Mount Prospect; Edwina Heisig, Palatine.

Volunteers receiving pins for 1,000 hours were Lenora Benjamin, Dorothy Breen, Julie Piggot, Mount Prospect; Judy D'Olivio, Des Plaines; Bea Foley, Arlington Heights; Elsie Weides, Prospect Heights.

Assertiveness topic at Oakton

"Assertiveness Training" will be the topic of an evening meeting of Oakton Community College Women Returning to School, scheduled for Tuesday at 7:30 at Niles Public Library, 6960 Oakton.

Gerd Smith, counseling and testing coordinator of the Women's Outreach Resource Center, will discuss assertiveness and how it differs from aggressiveness or non-assertive behavior and will use role playing to show participants how to be assertive.

Women Returning to School is a student activity-supported organization at Oakton designed to inform women of educational and career opportunities. Meetings are held twice monthly and are open to all community women.

Pat Handzel, Oakton's director of women's programs, may be contacted for information at 967-5120, ext. 350.

Methodists install

Mrs. James Blue, president of United Methodist Women of First United Methodist Church of Des Plaines, began her second year in office by conducting an installation service earlier this month. Installed as vice president was Mrs. Raymond Stettner. Mrs. Harold Jaderborg was installed as treasurer.

Next on the agenda

La LECHE LEAGUE

The La Leche League of Hoffman Estates begins a new series on breastfeeding Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the home of Kathy Richards, Schaumburg. Alice Sisterhenn and Barb Golub will lead the discussion. For answers to questions, nursing mothers may call 358-7231.

ARLINGTON NURSES

Arlington Heights Nurses Club meets Tuesday at 8:15 p.m. in Northwest Community Hospital to hear Rosemary Burke speak on "Diabetic Care Advancement and Applied Nursing Care." All area nurses are welcome.

Any Arlington resident needing to borrow sickroom items should contact Peggy Annett, 394-2281, during January.

Ask Andy

Elephants not afraid of mice

Andy sends a 20-volume set of the Merit Students Encyclopedia to Alyson Hanson, 11, of Fredericton, N.B., Canada, for her question: WHY ARE ELEPHANTS AFRAID OF MICE?

The elephant is such a whopping big animal that he tends to take your breath away. It is somewhat hard to believe that he is real. In this frame of mind, one is ready to believe almost anything about him. When you look at his huge head, it seems reasonable to believe that he has the sort of memory that never forgets. However, let's face it, we find it a bit harder to believe that Mr. Big is scared of mice.

For generations the average citizen has helped to spread various rumors about the elephant. As usual, some of the rumors are quite true and others are downright false. For example, it is true that the big beastie is an excellent swimmer. It also is true that he spends hours of his life purring. However, it is not true that he never forgets. And certainly he is not scared of a tiny mouse.

Goodness knows how this mousy story arose. Perhaps a somewhat timid person was overwhelmed and panic-stricken by the sheer size of the enormous animal. After all, he may stand nine feet tall and weigh four tons. And his tusks may be eight feet long. A timid person might feel a lot safer if he got the notion that Big Jumbo is scared of mice. Maybe the rumor was handed on and on because it makes all of us feel somewhat safer. After all, if the gigantic animal is afraid of a bitsy mouse, surely he is no menace to mankind.

But the rumor is downright false. In the first place, an elephant has rather poor eyesight. And his eyes are located about six feet above the ground where mice usually scuttle. Zoo keepers report that mice often scamper through the hay in his food bin — and Big Jumbo pays no attention to them.

Sometimes we see a film of a savage elephant on the rampage. Certainly this angry giant is dangerous to any person in his path. But the elephants we are likely to see are tame animals in zoos and circuses. These are gentle giants, very devoted to their keepers and fond of other human friends.

The average elephant is an intelligent animal. Some folks believe that he remembers an injury and carries a grudge for the rest of his life. True, he may never forget a kindly keeper, but in other matters his memory is no better than yours.

It is hard to believe that the bulky elephant is a strong, long-distance swimmer — but he is. However, it seems too much to believe that he purrs — but he does. When dining among the trees, the elephants in a wild herd make purring noises through their trunks. When he is approached by a predator, such as a human hunter, he stops purring — and his relatives get the silent signal from more than a mile away.

Andy sends a 7-volume set of the Chronicles of Narnia to David Person, 7, of Duluth, Minn., for his question: WHERE DO MOSQUITOS GO IN WINTER?

The pesky mosquitos are always whizzing around in the summertime. They lurk outdoors and do their best to make our hikes and picnics miserable. But come fall they disappear from the scene. It's nice to see them go. But surely it would be nicer if they visited during the winter and left us alone to enjoy our summer. Actually, those flying mosquitos are grown-ups, and they cannot survive the winter weather.

However, they make plans for a next generation to arrive in the spring. The female mosquito lays batches of little white eggs, like a floating raft on a pond. The eggs hatch and become hungry little wrigglers that live in the water. Soon they turn into pupas and rest near the surface.

In a few days they hatch into grown-up mosquitos and fly away. The female may lay several batches of eggs during the summer — and some wait for next spring. Right now, next summer's mosquitos are sleeping as eggs or darting around as little wrigglers in the water.

'World Press' on way to Moscow

by JOAN HANAUER

NEW YORK (UPI) — The oldest public affairs program on public television is going to leave home for the first time in 15 years in order to tape two shows from Moscow.

The show is "World Press," which will tape a pair of Moscow programs Wednesday for airing on PBS Feb. 1 and 8.

The first of the two Moscow-based shows will follow the standard "World Press" format, with its Soviet expert, Paul Zinner, moderating a panel of journalists from Pravda, Izvestia, Tass, and Russian television. The discussion will center on what stories the Soviet press covered in the preceding week, how they were chosen and why.

The second half-hour will deviate from usual "World Press" operating procedures for an in-depth look at the Soviet press in general and what Ivan Q. Public learns about the world from his newspapers and broadcasters.

THE PROGRAM ON Soviet news coverage will be particularly interesting because a lucky break will bring U.S. Sec. of State Henry Kissinger to Moscow the week the show is being taped, and how the Soviet press handles Kissinger's visit will be discussed.

Why go to Moscow?

"I would think basically to provide an opportunity for a two-way conversation with high level people in the Soviet communications field and give the public a view of what they are like," Zinner said.

He said he was aware of the need to be cautious and not let the show deteriorate into an exercise in Soviet propaganda but that he hoped it would "move a step ahead in making it a two-way conversation instead of either their talking and telling us or our talking and telling them."

Zinner said Americans either naively believe the Soviet press is just a Russian version of our own, which certainly it is not, or else they believe that it is wholly a propaganda tool of the government that fails totally to inform its readers, a view to which he also does not subscribe.

Experts bid takeover double

Oswald: "One of the great differences between expert and ordinary bridge is the bidding after a simple takeover double."

Jim: "Today's hand shows the expert bidding. North feels he has just enough to risk a two-spade bid, but South with his five-card suit and two kings has no problem. He bids to game."

Oswald: "Give an ordinary player the North hand. He counts 17 points in support of spades. He raises the value of his ace-queen of diamonds because he sits in back of the opening bidder and our ordinary North jumps to three spades. This would get a quick four-spade bid from any South."

Jim: "Put an expert North and or-

At Fayva numbers fill us with pride. In business 5 short years, we already number 235 stores. Our parent company is 55 years old, boasts an enviable record of growth and earnings and is NYSE listed. Every indication is that our up-spiral will continue at the same outstanding pace in 1976.

That's the company. Here's the opportunity: an on-the-job management training program in retail merchandising and store operations. More than competitive salary, progressive benefits and a 5 day work week.

That's the opportunity. Here's the candidate: personable, committed with a sense of urgency and high energy level; able to initiate, supervise and lead; willing to get involved in the daily workload; 6-12 months' retail experience preferred or its equivalence in drive and ambition.

At Fayva numbers fill us with pride. Big earnings, figures that beat the competition, new stores opening. They're numbers you can count on! Join us.

Kids let loose at all-night festival

All lounged out.

About 225 students blew off post-exam pressures last week during an all-night party at Hoffman Estates High School.

Above, Denise Taylor, vice president of the student council, clowns around with another student during the early hours of the 8½-hour lock-in.

There were badminton, ping pong and various athletic events. And as the party ended at 7:30 a.m. Friday, there even were places to rest weary bones.

Principal Thomas Hillesheim, one of the chaperones, said things went "very smoothly." "The kids enjoyed themselves, but they found that they needed more activities," he added.

Hillesheim noted the students were going "full steam ahead all night, but they kind of lost their enthusiasm as it got closer to 7:30 p.m."

He said the athletic events helped keep the students awake.

The lock-in was the first to be held in High School Dist. 211 and was proposed by a student who had transferred from another school. The student council sponsored the activities.

Hillesheim said only a few students slept and that "when they left at 7:30 a.m. they were really dragging."

Watching the birdie.

Harper offers seminar for senior citizens Feb. 3

All senior citizens in Harper College district are invited to a day-long seminar on the "The Power of Seniors: A Resource for the Future" Feb. 3 at the college.

Featuring guest speaker Howard Y. McClusky, professor at the University of Michigan, the program will explore the opportunities of senior citizens to use their resources in shaping the future of community life.

Transportation will be provided by the senior citizen bus systems of Elk Grove, Palatine, Schaumburg and Wheeling. Please call your township office for advance reservations.

Registration will begin at 9:45 a.m. with the morning session lasting from 10 to 11:45 a.m. Lunch will be arranged by the participants, who may use the college cafeteria. The afternoon session begins at 1 p.m. and ends at 3 p.m. Cost for the seminar is $1, not including lunch.

For further information, call the senior citizen program coordinator at 397-3000, ext. 329. To register, send a check for $1 with your name, address, age, phone number and social security number, to Harper College, Admissions, CEY 109, Harper College, Algonquin and Roselle roads, Palatine, Ill., 60067.

Europe travel-study trip

Harper College will participate in a 28-day travel-study program to Europe this summer that is open to the public.

The tour, sponsored in cooperation with the College of Lake County and the Foreign Study League, a subsidiary of Reader's Digest, will begin July 12. Leaving from O'Hare Airport, the tour goes to Rome, Florence, Venice, Salzburg, Munich, the Rhineland, Paris and London. The cost is $1,395 per person including all travel, meals and lodging.

Students may apply for credit for the trip through Harper or one of the other participating colleges. Harper students should register through the independent study program to receive credit for the trip.

Interested persons should contact Martha Simonsen, coordinator of the trip and Harper English instructor at 397-3000, ext. 287. Applications for the trip are being accepted.

$200 given to needy

The Harper College chapter of Phi Theta Kappa, a national scholastic honor society for community college students, recently donated more than $200 to the Neediest Children's Christmas Fund.

The money was raised through a dance held at Harper in December sponsored by the chapter.

Hi Lows high team in Paddock tourney

Team names don't always tell the true story.

There weren't many "lows" for the Hi Lows Saturday in the Paddock Publications Champagne Tournament for Mixed Leagues at Elk Grove Bowl.

Representing the Friday Night Frolics league of Rolling Meadows Fair Lanes, the quartet of Donald and Dorothy Wilkens, Richard Elliott and Louise Lawrenz smashed the pins for a 2406 count with handicap to take the top prize in the tenth annual event.

The champs fashioned their big total in the 6:15 shift at Elk Grove Bowl and then had to sit back and watch some stiff challenges, including a 2397 by the Copper Skillet entry of the Queens and Kings from the host house.

The Skillet squad actually had the lead going into the final game in their 8:30 shift but just missed catching the Hi Lows in an exciting battle that had to wait until the tenth frame of that third game for a decision.

Countryside Inn of the Palatine Post Office division at Brunswick Northwest also made a run at the Hi Lows but finished 19 pins off the pace in cashing for third place money.

The champion Hi Lows collected $200.82 and trophies for their efforts. Copper Skillet cashed for $153.96 in the runnerup slot and Countryside Inn for $100.41.

Rounding out the unofficial prize list were Halfast of the Thursday Go Go Mixed at Striking Lanes ($80.33), Who Care's of the Bowling Bankers at Brunswick Northwest ($60.25), The Gutter Swipes of the Chemplex Mixed at Striking Lanes ($46.86) and DAPA of the Odd Couples at Thunderbird Lanes ($26.77).

Every Other Sunday of the Every Other Sunday League at Sims Bowl rolled high game out of the money with a 738, a $15.00 award.

But the big story Saturday was the performance of the Hi Lows in topping a talented field of mixed leagues ping a talented field of mixed leagues entries. Each squad in the tourney had to be in first place of their respective leagues as of Dec. 20.

Louise Lawrenz was the pace-setter for the champs with a steady 589 series that showed games of 179, 219, 191. She opened with a 179 and then boomed out a 219 despite opening in the ninth with a split. She had a two-bagger and then put four strikes together after covering a difficult split in the fourth.

In the third game Louise again capitalized after covering a split. She had a turkey through the fifth and only open frames in the eighth and ninth kept her from another 200.

Donald Wilkens posted a 524 for the Hi Lows, over his 160 average, and Dorothy Wilkens came in at 510. Richard Elliott rounded out the championship effort with a 456.

Charles Sherman's sizzling 647 series paved the way for the runnerup finish of Copper Skillet. Sherman opened with a 197, opened in the first frame of the second game and then smashed the pins for a 213. He had an open in the fourth of the third game but put six strikes together en route to a 237 finish.

Ken Stevens contributed a 546 with a 204 middle game for Copper Skillet and Isabel Sherman (445) and Bonnie Stevens (411) also chipped in important efforts.

Countryside Inn's big finish (665 third game) carried them to third place money. John Shillington had a 196 opener and 513 scratch for the Palatine Post Office entry. Other scores were Deb Donovan with a 508 (only a 124 average going into the tourney), Rob Shillington (455) and Ruth Hedberg (437).

Each bowler in the tournament received a free split of champagne compliments of Armanetti's Wine Cellar in Rolling Meadows Shopping Center.

Complete team and individual results in the mixed tournament and women's event (held Sunday at Elk Grove Bowl) will appear in Tuesday's Herald.

Paddock women's bowling tourney

The home-based Mudders of the Lexington Fillies league won the Paddock Women's bowling tourney Sunday at Elk Grove Bowl with 2834, just one pin ahead of Gladstone Realtors.

The 674-average squad shot 774, 721 and 811, an average of 19 pins per bowler, per game over normal to take the coveted prize.

Detailed scores will be published in Tuesday editions of The Herald.

Unofficial results.

Team	Total Pins	Prize Money
1. Mudders	2834	$387.27
2. Gladstone Realtors	2833	268.11

From ambulances in Africa to souped-up sedans at Sebring

When you think of a Peace Corps member, you think of some idealistic ascetic who lives on betel nuts and goat's milk in a thatched jungle hut while he treats pellagra, beri-beri and tapes wings back on wounded butterflies. He's bucking for sainthood, not stardom. He's not goal-oriented, victory-programmed His idols are Dr. Schweitzer or Mahatma Gandhi, not Larry Csonka or A. J. Foyt.

When you think of a race car driver, you think of a guy oblivious to human misery and suffering in far-off places, an unpolished extrovert who lives life at 200 m.p.h. and can look at comrades in burning cars with a shrug. He has an overhead cam for a heart, his idea of true happiness is Victory Lane and the Borg-Warner Trophy and he probably doesn't even give at the office.

So, what's the director of the Peace Corps doing in a race car?

Shouldn't Nicholas W. Craw be handing out bandages in Bangladesh, driving an ambulance in Africa instead of a souped-up sedan at Sebring? What's he doing at Talladega instead of Portuguese Timor? Does the VISTA program extend to the pits at Laguna Seca? Shouldn't he be on a hospital ship instead of a speedway?

Nick Craw was not only a member of the Peace Corps, he was its DIRECTOR. He spent his life at remote outposts like Botswana or Nepal or Uganda. He ran the 7,000-man peace army from the field.

He had been public-service directed all his life, even before graduation (cum laude) from Princeton. He had been steered in the direction of the State Department, but ran the mercy ship and floating medical school, the SS Hope all over the world instead. Father had been a career Air Corps officer who was killed in the invasion of North Africa in World War II, and there were always two parts of his nature that stuck in this Craw — the idea of selfless dedication to a powerless world, and at the same time an absorbed fascination with the horse-powered world of the race track. The Porsche Corps eventually won out over the Peace Corps, and Nick Craw resigned his $40,000-a-year directorship to race full-time.

Even when he was a part-time or weekend racer, Nick had had success, winning Formula B races in his first year, 1968. If the career seemed antithetical — and some of his friends couldn't be more shocked if Dr. Schweitzer turned up as the commander of a U-boat — Nick Craw finds them more allied than surface appearances. "They're both a form of adventure, a carrying-out of dreams," he insists.

He expects he got his love of speed from his father, a fighter and bomber pilot, who had been on special detachment to Britain well before the U.S. involvement in World War II, instructing Spitfire and Hurricane fighters for the RAF. "My father was a colonel, and he was the first Medal of Honor winner in the war. He was a man who liked adventure, and the first time I got in a race car, I felt the same surge myself."

The Peace Corps was a 70-country goodwill force when Craw headed it up. Youth-centered initially, Craw brought in older citizens. "There were lots of retired citizens out there with a lot to give the world. Let's face it, a 23-year-old is long on enthusiasm but he's not going to be a marine biologist with 10 years experience."

An 85-car grid at Daytona is hardly a Peace Corps. Some wars are tamer than the first turn there, but Craw's bag is now the B.F. Goodrich Radial Challenge Series of races for sub-compacts. Craw pilots a BMW 2002, and is champion of the series of 11 races. Craw won three of them, and clinched a title with a second at Daytona, his third second in the series. He is 39.

Of course, the only fair thing to do now is to permit A. J. Foyt to make the switch and go to Spanish Sahara or Upper Volta for the Peace Corps. A. J. will bring peace to the region — if he has to bust them in the mouth to do it. And Bobby Unser will be glad to volunteer — to teach the world how to go 220 mph and get 500 miles on only two sets of tires and 300 gallons of gasoline and other triumphs of modern science and civilized society.

Meadows falls but gives touted West Aurora fits in cage action

A Herald Staff Report

When is a loss the most significant basketball story of the weekend?

When that loss is almost a stunning victory against a touted opponent.

Underdog Rolling Meadows gave highly regarded West Aurora fits Saturday evening, building up a 10-point advantage in the third period, but the Blackhawks regrouped and pulled out a 59-50 win.

Although the area enjoyed some success in the win column in a busy Saturday schedule, it was that Meadows battle that grabbed the headlines.

The much-improved Mustangs took the Blackhawk by the wings and came ever so close to the biggest upset of the year before falling at Rolling Meadows.

Coach Bill Weinberg's Mustangs built a 10-point lead halfway through the third period, largely on the efforts of Jerry McGill and Noe Nunez. Then in the fourth quarter the roof caved in on Meadows as Aurora's press defense brought the visitors to life.

West's Blackhawks came into the game with a 16-2 record and rave notices from a variety of statewide polls, some of which had them ranked as high second.

But Rolling Meadows' shifting zone defense and the Mustangs' aggressive inside game proved to be almost too much for the Blackhawks, who had been limiting the opposition to an average of less than 40 points per game. By the second half, West Aurora had switched to a zone defense.

McGill led the Mustangs with 18 points, including a pair of three-point plays in the first half when he broke around Aurora's intimidator, Ron Hicks. McGill worked free several times and Nunez did his job by getting the ball inside when it counted.

"When Nunez plays well, we play well," said Weinberg, after his team's mark fell to a very deceptive 5-11 for the season.

Nunez, the 5-10 guard, finished with 15 points that included five straight free throws in the third period to keep the Mustangs ahead. A flurry of points by Nunez and McGill near the end of the first half had pushed Meadows into a 29-23 edge after the teams had exchanged leads 11 times.

Aurora slapped on the full-court press in the fourth quarter and guard Larry Hatchett made it work. Hatchett, who played much of the second half with four fouls, contributed several key steals and tossed in 14 points, 12 in the second half.

Hicks woke up in the second half with 13 of his 19 points, including five baskets in the final quarter. Jay Bryant, a flashy playmaking forward, had 16 points and a bundle of assists.

Meadows got eight points from John Carbery, five from Ken Breitbeil, and four from Bill Wissen.

HOFFMAN RALLIES, 67-59

Junior forward Joe Tully came off the bench to spark a fourth-quarter uprising and send Hoffman Estates on its way to a 67-59 come-from-behind victory over visiting Cary-Grove in a nonconference game.

Tully bagged 12 points and pulled down seven rebounds as the Hawks wiped out a Cary-Grove lead that had reached 10 points during the third quarter.

Gene Foster was Hoffman's leading scorer with 18 points, several of them coming in the final period when the Hawks outscored their opponents 21-9.

"Tully and Foster put in some clutch baskets in the late going," said (Continued on Page 4)

Arlington's swimmers top invite

The host Arlington swim team captured eight firsts and won the first-annual Olympic Invitational swimming meet Saturday. Forest View was second in the six-tem field.

The Cards 109 meet points won easily over second place Forest View's 50 points. Elgin narrowly took third with 48 points over Lake Forest with 47. Oak Forest was fifth, tied with Rockford Auburn with 38 points each.

The Cards took both sophomore events, 2 200-yard medley relay and a 400-yard free relay. Card varsity swimmers also notched wins in both relays.

Arlington's Tony Hahn was the only double winner of the day. Hahn won the 200-yard freestyle with a time of 1:53.9 and the 500-yard freestyle with a time of 5:11.2.

Scott McCratic took the diving event for Arlington with a score of 213.6 points. The Cards also went 1-2 in the breaststroke as the Roessler brothers took the top spots.

Mike Roessler won with a time of 1:05.1. Steve Roessler was second with a time of 1:07.6.

Kings crown Bulls, 118-110

Nate Archibald and Glenn Hansen combined for 50 points Sunday afternoon in leading the Kansas City Kings to a 118-110 victory over the Chicago Bulls in a nationally televised NBA game.

Archibald finished with a game high 27 points and 10 assists while Hansen, playing less than half the game, had 23 points and Sam Lacey and Scott Wedman had 19 apiece. Lacey also had 16 rebounds and seven assists.

Bob Love, who fouled out with 3:21 to play, led Chicago with 26 points while Norm Van Lier and John Laskowski had 18 apiece. Cliff Pondexter led the Bulls with 11 rebounds and Van Lier had nine.

Chicago opened with the first eight points of the game before Archibald got the Kings rolling and they proceeded to outscore the Bulls 10-2, with the 6-0 guard picking up eight of those points.

Archibald wound up with 14 of his points in that period while Lacey had eight rebounds in guiding the Kings to a 31-29 lead.

Hansen, who came off the bench with just less than three minutes left in the first quarter, led a Kansas City surge in the second period with 13 points and the Kings, who scored the first six points of the quarter led 58-49 at the half.

The big point in the opening half came when Love picked up his third and fourth fouls within a one second span and sat out the final 8:35 of the half.

The big point in the opening half came when Love picked up his third and fourth fouls within a one second span and sat out the final 8:35 of the half.

In breaking a four game losing streak, the Kings built an 85-68 lead in the third quarter behind 11 points from Wedman. Fifteen of Chicago's 31 third quarter points came on free throws, including 10 by Love.

Pro-Bowl in 'Dome

The Pro Bowl has no bearing on playoffs or standings. The difference between the winning and losing shares — $500 — is not that large. The game is played after the season when many fans are turning their attention to other sports.

So why should the players put any real effort into it? "It's a fun time," said Jim Hart, the St. Louis Cardinals quarterback who will lead the National Football Conference against the American Football Conference Monday night in the Louisiana Superdome, said Friday.

"I just look forward to being with the men. You know, it's with guys you've wanted to beat so badly during the season. You respect them."

Players concede, however, that the hitting may not be as hard in the Pro Bowl as it is in the regular season because players want to avoid injury.

"This is going to be more of a finesse game," said Cliff Harris, the Dallas Cowboys safety.

Hawks turn back Scouts, 3-1

The Chicago Black Hawks knocked off the Kansas City Scouts 3-1 to push their current unbeaten string to six.

The win boosted Chicago's Smythe Division record to 19-11-16 as they took a 2-0-1 advantage on the Scouts' in the teams' season series.

The victory also improved the Hawks division lead over the idle Vancouver Canucks to 12 points.

The Hawks opened the scoring in the first period when Stan Mikita fired home a power play goal to give Chicago a 1-0 lead it held through the period.

The Scouts tallied but Dennis Hull whipped in a shorthanded goal, his 14th of the season, to give the Hawks a 2-1 cushion after two periods.

Alain Daigle fired home a goal in the third period to seal the win for the Black Hawks.

Crenshaw wins Crosby by two Young Ben Crenshaw, playing steadily if not spectacularly, moved in after Jack Nicklaus fell apart Sunday to win the $185,000 Bing Crosby National Pro-Am by two shots.

The 24-year-old Crenshaw, who burst onto the golfing scene by winning his first pro tournament in the fall of 1973, shot a closing round three-under-par 69 to beat Mike Morley, who finished with a one-over 73.

Nicklaus, who has won 60 golfing titles in his great career, started the final round a shot ahead of Morley and three ahead of Crenshaw, but took two triple bogeys, a double bogey and five bogeys for an uncharacteristic 10-over-par 82 that put him well back.

MSU gets stiff probation

Michigan State University's football program was placed on three years probation by the NCAA Sunday and had limitations placed on the number of scholarships it can grant during the next two years.

The school was ordered to prohibit an unnamed assistant from off campus recruiting during the first calendar year of its probation and a second assistant from recruiting during the entire probation. A third assistant coach was ordered fired.

Earlier, it was reported that Howard Weyers and Charlie Butler were ordered dismissed by the NCAA as assistants. However, Weyers took a lie detector test in September to support his innocence and appeared before the NCAA Council Jan. 18 to appeal the decision. He reportedly won his appeal.

MSU was also ordered to sever all relations between two supporters and its intercollegiate athletic program.

Two girls' teams host state bowling districts

Competitors from 177 downstate and suburban schools will begin the trek toward the fourth crown in the Illinois High School Association (IHSA) Girls State Bowling Tournament series Saturday, Feb. 7 at 28 District sites.

Perennial power Forest View, which hosts its own district, Abingdon and Lane Tech, which rates as the favorite in the Chicago Public League qualifying tournament, are given the best chances to replace Dixon as state champion.

Other local teams at the Forest View District are Arlington, Hersey, Buffalo Grove, Prospect, Palatine and Wheeling.

At the Schaumburg hosted district will be Elk Grove, Conant, Hoffman Estates, Fremd and Rolling Meadows.

Champions of each district, plus the top four placing teams in the Public League competition, will advance to the state final tournament the week-end of Feb. 13-14 at Town and Country Bowl in Peoria. Peoria Richwoods is host school for the state final.

For the second year, scoring will be based on total pinfall. At the districts, the top four scoring teams after the first round will compete in the final round. The district champion will be the team earning the highest total pinfall from among the five bowlers per round. Each round will consist of a three-game series.

At the state final, the field of 32 teams will be halved after the first round at 8 a.m. Friday, Feb. 13. The 16-team quarterfinals are set for 2 p.m. Feb. 13. The eight surviving teams will battle in the semifinals Saturday, Feb. 14, at 9 a.m. with the four finalists meeting a 1 p.m. in the championship round.

Dixon posted a total pinfall of 9,749 last year to beat Forest View by 229 pins. Lane Tech's Nancy Hashimoto recorded last year's top series with games of 201-184-183 for a 568 count.

Last year a total of 182 downstate and suburban schools entered the tournament series.

Why no grade school coverage?

Dear Mr. Editor,

Some time ago, one of your sports columnists wrote an article on the alarming lack of interest and participation of our suburban children playing basketball in the parks, streets, alleys, etc. as compared to the inner city kids. Well, as a basketball coach for a 5th grade park district team, I think your paper's lack of interest in our grade school program is also alarming.

The Arlington Heights Park District has a fine basketball program for grades four through eight. In the two years I have been coaching these fine boys, not once has the Paddock paper printed the game scores or standings. Your paper seems to go to great lengths to compile statistics for Arlington Heights baseball, football, hockey, and Catholic grade school basketball, but alas, no Park District basketball. What gives?

Jim Messineo
Arlington Heights

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Herald prints all the grade school sports results it receives from the organizations involved. There are so many youth groups in the area that we have to rely on the group itself to supply the scores each week. Thanks for your interest.

Seventh Wayside sports night has mystery guest

Area fathers as well as their sons and daughters are in for a special treat tonight at the seventh annual Our Lady of the Wayside Sports Night.

Held at the school's gym, Ridge and Park, in Arlington Heights, the gala sports show will feature a special mystery celebrity along with such stars as the Cubs' Bill Madlock, the Black Hawks' Pit Martin, the Bulls' Tom Boerwinkle and the Bears' Mike Adamle.

Introducing major league baseball's newest and most talked about personality will be Bob Elson, the veteran sports broadcaster and the night's master of ceremonies.

The final clues as to this secret guest's identity are these:

- He once hired a midget to pinch hit.

- Under his leadership in 1959, a baseball pennant came to Chicagoans.

- And his last name rhymes with wreck.

There will be plenty of prizes for the boys and girls who attend as well as for their fathers. Over 100 door prizes will be given away to the children, including autographed basketballs, baseballs, hockey sticks and many other items.

There will also be a $500 first prize along with such gifts as a 19 inch color television, a digital watch and an outdoor grill.

Tickets are $4 for adults and $2 for students. Beer and soda pop will be provided free.

Harper drops OT thriller to Joliet, 92-88

Special to the Herald

The Harper Hawks went into overtime for the fifth time this season before bowing to the Wolves of Joliet 92-88 in a North Central Community College Conference tussle.

The Hawks have won only two of their overtime battles but head coach Roger Bechtold was pleased with the job his team, now 8-11 for the season, turned in.

"We lost four starters to fouls in the overtime," he said, "and it hurt to play as well as we did and still lose. But I think Joliet is one of the best teams in the state and we played with them to the end."

Harper almost had the game won in regulation time and once led the Wolves by 14 points.

Steve Loughman hit a pair of free throws, he finished with 14 points, with six seconds left in regulation time to give Harper an 82-80 lead but Joliet broke the Hawks' defense and knotted the game just before the buzzer.

With only guard Bill Kenney on the floor representing the starters, Joliet wore the Hawks away in the extra period.

"Kenney moves the ball well and plays extremely good defense," Bechtold said. "He adds a whole new dimension to our team. We've only lost two games, and both of them in overtime, since he joined the team."

Wally Butman and Jim Arden, who have stepped forward to take the initiative in Harper's offense, shared scoring honors with 23 points apiece.

"Joliet is a very talented, physical team," Bechtold commented. "And in the first half the refs called enough fouls on them to keep them honest."

"But in the second half Joliet started going over our backs for the rebounds and the refs stopped calling them."

"It turned into a vicious game."

High-scoring transfers aid small school power

ELDORADO, Ill. (UPI) — Coach Bob Brown believes in keeping a tight rein on his highflying Eldorado Eagles who enjoy a lofty perch atop the Illinois Class A basketball standings.

Brown, 31, a West Frankfort native and former University of Illinois freshman basketball team coach, is in his fourth year at Eldorado and guided the Eagles to fourth place in the state finals last year, highest ever for an Eldorado team.

"I think we have the potential to go all the way," said Brown. "This team does not have too many weaknesses but any time you are chasing the state title anything can happen."

The Eagles, with a 17-0 mark going into the Harrisburg tourney semifinals, have been favored with some high-scoring transfer students from other schools in the past three years.

A leading scorer, Mike Duff, a 6-foot-7-inch junior, came in from Shawneetown after his freshman year but missed most of his sophomore year action because of an injury. He's making up for it now and Brown sees superstar written all over him.

Joe Culbreth, a senior, transferred at midyear from nearby Harrisburg after he was suspended there. Brown says Culbreth will get plenty of playing time but must spend some time studying the Eldorado style. And Brown isn't in a big hurry to break up his winning combination.

Other starters in Brown's band of renown include: Barry Smith, a 6-foot-6 forward described by his coach as "just a super basketball player;" Eddie Lane, a 6-foot-4 sophomore, who Brown says is the best sophomore he's ever coached; Jimmy Campbell, a 6-foot-4½ senior forward, and Rusty Phillips a 5-foot-10 guard, who Brown says "makes things happen for our basketball team."

Other bench strength includes 6-foot-2 senior Dan Brewer and 6-foot-2 junior Kenny Hobbs.

"I emphasize the team concept," says Brown. "There's only one basketball to play with and we're all supposed to get in on the act." He combines that with a strong emphasis on discipline. "I believe discipline is necessary not only in basketball but in life as well. When I call a time out, I want them to come running to the bench because I've got something to tell them."

SAA to hold baseball signup

Schaumburg Athletic Assn. baseball registration will be held Saturday, Jan. 31 at the Great Hall in the barn on Civic Drive above the police station.

Registration is open to all Schaumburg boys and girls who will be between eight and 15 years old as of Aug. 1, 1976. The registration fee of $30 per player or $50 per family covers all program expenses.

According to SAA officials, the program has been overhauled this year.

Hemphill feted by officials group

The Athletic Officials Service, an organization of basketball and football referees from the Chicago area, met Thursday evening to honor one of their members, Bill Hemphill of Arlington Heights.

Hemphill, who has been a member

The Service, over 100 strong, gathered to wish Bill the best of luck and to recognize his contribution to officiating over the past several years.

Football coaches to play cage game for Keefe Fund

A special exhibition basketball game involving football coaches from the North and South divisions of the Mid-Suburban League will be held Wednesday evening, Feb. 4, to help in the education fund for the children of Dave Keefe.

Keefe, who died of cancer New Year's Eve, was the head football coach at Prospect High School.

The Prospect Booster Club has organized the event as part of their continuing effort to raise money for the Coach David Keefe Fund. Anyone wishing to donate money should make checks payable to the Coach David Keefe Fund, Mount Prospect State Bank, Mount Prospect, Ill. 60056.

The basketball exhibition will match coaches from all levels of football and will be held at 8 p.m. Feb. 4 in the Prospect Fieldhouse. Additional details will be released later as preparation continues.
